SENATE BRIBERY INQUIRY

Following the declaration of Lieutenant Governor Frothingham that "it is up to the Senate to clear its name, "it became known at the State House to-day that the Senate will make a rigid investigation of the charges made by Ralph S. Bauer, president of the Lynn Board of Trade, that Senators were being bribed in connection with the Lynn railroad depression bill and that he had been told he could swing three votes by putting up $500 each.

District Attorney Pelletier has already made an investigation of Mr. Bauer's statement, which he came to the Boston AMERICAN office and asked to have printed, and it is understood that he will delve further into it.

But irrespective of action by Mr. Pelletier, the Senate feels that it should get from Mr. Bauer the information which he imparted to the Boston AMERICAN relative to money and "promised campaign expenses" in connection with the Lynn legislation.

May Go Before Senate.

The usual procedure in cases such as that of Mr. Bauer is to call the man who has made charges before the bar of the Senate and have him explain his charges and offer any evidence in his possession of the truth of the charges. The man haled before the bar of the Senate has the right to call witnesses in his behalf if he so desires.

It is expected that early next week Mr. Bauer will be requested to go before the bar of the Senate and repeat the story he told to the AMERICAN.

The District Attorney was anxious to learn whether Mr. Bauer had any tangible evidence of the truth of his startling story. Mr. Bauer was questioned at length by Mr. Pelletier himself.

Representatives of the AMERICAN to whom Mr. Bauer told his story, went to the district attorney's office and told him frankly just how Mr. Bauer had come into the AMERICAN office and had told the story that caused much excitement on Beacon Hill.

How Bauer Told Story.

The facts concerning how the AMERICAN got Mr. Bauer's story, and printed it as a valuable piece of news, were briefly that Mr. Bauer came to the Boston AMERICAN office on Thursday and saw the circulation manager with whom he is well acquainted.

Mr. Bauer said he had a big story for the AMERICAN, and wanted to meet the editor. The circulation manager took Mr. Bauer to the editor where he made the statements which the AMERICAN printed. He later on repeated them to a reporter who wrote them out.

Meeting another man connected with the paper whom he knew, after he had told his story, Mr. Bauer confided to him that he had given the paper a big piece of news.

Later in the day Mr. Bauer met a newsboy in Newspaper Row and bought from

SAUNDERS GOES BACK FOR TRIAL

Robert A. Saunders, the self-confessed highway robber, whose letter to the AMERICAN a month ago was one of the most remarkable comunications in criminal annals, was taken to Plymouth, N. H., to-day from Haverhill, where he was captured while living in hiding there with his wife and infant child.

Saunders waived extradition in Haverhill and made as little trouble as possible for the police in the proceedings to have him taken out of one State into another.

Improvement in his baby's health was the cause of his decision not to oppose extradition.

When Saunders was arrested yesterday his six-weeks' old child was dangerously ill with cholera infantum. Her case was at a critical point. Early to-day Mrs. Saunders came to Haverhill police station. She was allowed by Police Captain Shannon to talk with her husband through the bars of his cell.

"Dr. Atwood says the baby is better, Robert," said Mrs. Saunders."

Then Saunders said to her:

"I'll not demand extradition papers. I thought that if the baby was no better, I would demand extradition, merely so that I could be kept here till the extradition papers were granted. But now that baby is better, I will go to New Hampshire without making any trouble of any kind. I want to do everything I can to help my case when it comes to trial."

Saunders also told this to Captain Shannon. A few minutes later Judge Ryan held a special session of Haverhill district court, ahead of the usual 9 o'clock hour. Deputy Sheriff Joseph P. Hurkins of Grafton County, N. H., was on hand with a warrant, charging Saunders with being a fugitive from justice. Captain Shannon told the court that Saunders did not ask extradition and would go to New Hampshire. The court gave Saunders into the custody of the New Hampshire deputy.

James P. Ripley of the detective agency which brought about Saunders's arrest in Haverhill handcuffed Saunders to himself,

Frank J. Blaskovec, who was arraigned in Somerville District Court to-day on a charge of murder in shooting Mrs. Frances Wilkinson of Somerville, makes the remarkable accusation against his victim that she tried to inoculate him with tuberculosis.

FALL RIVER

Notwithstanding the fact that "Fall River looms up," a city of indomitable courage, her operatives and her merchants would like to know just what the trouble is with the textile industry, and why, suddenly, it seems to have been affected with paralysis. The Sunday AMERICAN has asked one of New England's leading manufacturers to tell us "what's the matter." His answer will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN exclusively.

LEAPS TO DEATH TO FLEE RAID

May Daley leaped from a third-story window in the house No. 77 Chandler street and died on the way to the City Hospital. She took the death leap after the police had raided the house, which is conducted by Mrs. Lavina Atkinson.

The police think the girl was under the influence of a drug when she leaped from the window. She fell thirty-five feet, striking on her head and shoulder upon the curbing at the corner of Chandler and Cazenove streets. She was twenty-two years old. Where her family lives and her antecedents the police have not learned.

Sergeants Munroe and Mullen and Patrolmen Irwin and Gaffey of the East Dedham street station raided the house with a warrant for the arrest of persons found using hypnotic drugs or having the same in their possession. They found Frank Teahan and the Daley girl. Patrolman Irwin stood guard over them. After he left the room Patrolman Gaffey returned to speak to Patrolman Irwin. Irwin heard Gaffey's hand on the door knob, and thought it might be some one who would attempt a rescue. Irwin seized Teahan and threw him down on the bed to hold him. At that moment the Daley girl stepped upon a chair and threw herself from the window.

Teahan was taken to the East Dedham street station. When he was searched a small vial of morphine was found and on the drug charge he was made a prisoner. He is about thirty years old and says he is a piano tuner. "I met the girl five weeks ago," he told the police.

Teahan is said to have lived at No. 77 Chandler street for about a year and a half.

Al Bridwell and Hank Gowdy arrived this morning and were given their new uniforms. Despite the stories from New York, Bridwell said he was glad to get away from the Giants.

Lefty Leifield was the choice to pitch for the Pirates. "Hub" Perdue was Tenney's first choice, with "Buster" Brown second in favor.

WICKERSHAM TO BE HEARD ON CHARGES

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Attorney General George W. Wickersham will be given a hearing next Monday before the House Committee on Judiciary relative to charges preferred against him by Delegate James Wickersham of Alaska, that the Attorney-General refused to investigate the alleged "grab" of water front sites on Controller Bay, Alaska, after proof had been lodged with him.

BIG VICTORY FOR TAFT IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The Canadian reciprocity bill this afternoon was passed by the Senate, unamended, and President Taft has won the greatest victory of his career. The vote was 53 to 27.

CRANE AND LODGE BOTH VOTE FOR BILL.

The vote was as follows:

Yeas—Bacon, Bankhead, Bradley, Brandegee, Briggs, Brown, Bryan, Burton, Chamberlain, Chilton, Crane, Culberson, Cullom, Davis, Fletcher, Foster, Gore, Guggenheim, Hitchcock, Johnson, Johnston, Jones, Kern, Lodge, McLean, Martin, Martine, Myers, Newlands, Nixon, O'Gorman, Overman, Owen, Poynter, Penrose, Perkins, Poindexter, Pomerene, Reed, Richardson, Root, Shively, Smith of Maryland, Smith of South Carolina, Stephenson, Stone, Swanson, Taylor, Thornton, Watson, Williams and Works—53.

Nays—Bailey, Borah, Bourne, Bristow, Burnham, Clapp, Clapp of Wyoming, Clarke of Arkansas, Crawford, Cummins, Curtis, Dixon, Gamble, Gronna, Heyburn, Kenyon, LaFollette, Lippitt, Lorimer, McCumber, Nelson, Oliver, Page, Simmons, Smith of Michigan, Smoot and Warren—27.

All the negative votes were cast by Republicans except Simmons, Bailey and Clarke of Arkansas, Democrats.

Senator Thornton, Democrat, of Louisiana, was present but announced his pair against the bill with Senator DuPont of Delaware, in favor of it.

The great measure, as advocated by the Boston AMERICAN and all of the other Hearst newspapers, went through as it came from the House of Representatives in spite of the efforts of La Follette, Cummins and Bailey, who did all in their power to block it with amendments.

But the friends of reciprocity were on hand in the Senate to-day and bubbling with belligerency. Every effort that sprang up to amend the bill was promptly met and decisively defeated.

President Taft was kept in touch with the proceedings and showed the greatest satisfaction as the hostile amendments were successively defeated.

The bill was already engrossed in the form in which it passed and all that was necessary after the final passage was the signature of the President to make it a law.

Much Excitement at Capitol.

There was much excitement at the Capitol building as the great bill came up for final action, and the friends of the measure were congratulated on the long and successful fight.

Rapid fire work marked the final deliberations on the bill. Amendments were slaughtered in order that the measure might be rushed through.

The first was that proposed by Senator McCumber of North Dakota, providing for reductions in the duties on certain manufactured goods and placing other articles on the free list. This was defeated, 64 to 11. A handful of insurgents and Republican standpatters voted for the amendment.

The Nelson amendment, reducing the duty on Canadian imports one-half of the present rates, was next defeated by a vote of 58 to 27.

The Simmons amendment to the meat schedule was defeated, 64 to 16.

Senator Cummins offered an amendment to Section 121 of the Payne-Aldrich act reducing the duty on structural steel three-tenths of one per cent. per pound, and fixing all other duties on iron and steel products 60 per cent. of the present duties. It was defeated by a vote of 64 to 17.

Kill LaFollette Amendments.

Another amendment offered by Senator Cummins, affecting all cloths and linoleum, fixing the duty of 40 per cent. of the present duties, was defeated without division.

Senator La Follette offered as an amendment his bill revising the wool schedule of the existing tariff law. It was defeated by a vote of 16 to 64.

Senator La Follette then presented his amendment revising the cotton schedule of the Payne-Aldrich tariff. To this Senator Bailey offered an amendment placing a duty of 20 per cent. ad valorem on cotton. The amendment was defeated without a roll call, Bailey, Simmons, and Clark of Arkansas being the only ones to vote for it. La Follette's cotton schedule was defeated, 63 to 15.

Senator La Follette's amendment to put wood pulp and news print paper on the free list was defeated, 67 to 11.

Another Defeat For Bailey.

Senator Bailey offered an amendment to place on the free list agricultural implements, cotton bagging, ties and other articles mentioned in the Underwood farmers free list bill as it passed the House. This was defeated 63 to 15.

Senator McCumber's amendment to place harness, saddles and saddlery on the free list was defeated 64 to 15.

Senator McCumber's amendment to prevent the free admission from Canada of barley and other cereals held in bonded warehouses was defeated 54 to 21.

Senator Bristow's amendment to reduce duty on type metal and new type was defeated, 61 to 16. His amendment fixing a 25 per cent. ad valorem duty on rubber was defeated without a roll call.

Senator Crawford's amendment placing all Canadian manufactured goods on the free list was voted down without reading and without a roll call.

FINAL STAND IN HAYTI WAR

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, July 22.—With the rebel troops moving on the capital to-day, President Simon, with the remnants of the army which he brought back from the Cape Haytien rout is entrenching himself for his last stand. The fate of the "republic" will be determined in the forthcoming battle, and it is generally believed here that the aged executive's cause is hopeless, as his troops are so demoralized as virtually to be beaten before the first gun is fired.

Representatives of all the foreign governments here have made urgent calls upon their home offices for warships. In expectations that the anarchy incited by drunken mobs of negroes after the fall of Cape Haytien will be repeated here in the almost certain event of the capture of the city, the foreign diplomats are preparing to give refuge to their countrymen and women when the engagement begins.

The American gunboat Petrel is here and is expected to take a firm stand against any attempt by the rebels to bombard the capital.

Reports from Cape Haytien to-day state that the rebels are continuing their orgies and that the yacht American remains on guard with her owner, Benjamin R. Dick, the New York broker, threatening the mobs with her guns if any attempt is made to molest the hundreds of women sheltered in the foreign consulates.

The AMERICAN goes into more homes than all the other evening papers of Boston combined. It is the Quality newspaper.

BAUER'S STORY UNDER PROBE

him a copy of the AMERICAN that contained his story displayed on the first page.

"That's a fine story," Bauer said to the newsboy, with whom he is acquainted. "I gave that to the editor of the AMERICAN."

When the AMERICAN reached the State House there was a commotion. There was talk among the members as to what it would be best to do, and finally decided to ask District Attorney Pelletier to investigate the charges that Mr. Bauer had made.

Following the investigation made by Mr. Pelletier, it is believed that the Senate will appoint a committee to look into the matter.

Argued for Depression.

In the meantime there is considerable talk about the bill which has passed the House and reached the enactment stage in the Senate. The bill provides that the tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad shall be depressed in Lynn. There has been a warm controversy over the matter.

It was said around the State House today that the charges that Mr. Bauer made might have some effect still on the ultimate fate of the bill.

If the Senate should decide to investigate Mr. Bauer's charges he would be summoned before a senatorial committee and given a chance to repeat them.

When Mr. Bauer came into the AMERICAN office with his story he made an argument in favor of the depression of the railroad tracks in Lynn, stating that to build an elevated structure as others desired, including the railroad, would hurt property interests.

"The railroad tracks go through the most valuable section of Lynn," Mr. Bauer said, "and through the most valuable land in Essex County. The land there is worth from $12 to $15 a square foot.

"Why, to put an elevated structure there would be like building one in Summer and Washington streets, Boston."

"Lobbyists Working Hard."

That was the tenor of Mr. Bauer's argument on Thursday morning, the bill having passed the Senate the day before by a vote of 14 to 10. But the matter was to come up for reconsideration on Thursday and Mr. Bauer was afraid that some influence would kill the bill to depress the tracks on reconsideration.

Mr. Bauer said that the lobbyists representing the railroad had been working hard to induce four other Senators to come over to their side and he requested that these men be interviewed at once.

When the Lynn bill come up on Thursday for reconsideration the vote against reconsideration was lost by a vote of 14 to 12. That is the way the matter stands to-day.

The bill has passed the House and there will be another consideration of it, when it comes up for enactment in the Senate. If it gets through there it will go to the Governor and Mr. Bauer said that the friends of depression felt sure that the Governor would sign it.

But the plan to depress the railroad tracks in Lynn has been strenuously opposed by citizens of Lynn among whom is P. B. Magrane, one of the largest tax payers of that city.

Magrane Opposed Depression.

Mr. Magrane appeared before the committee at the State House and argued against the depression bill. He said that he had been connected with grade crossing movements in Lynn for about twenty-five years, and was familiar with what had been done and what it was proposed to do.

"About 95 per cent., I think, of the population of the city of Lynn, I think, have no interest in the depression of these tracks; there would be only about 400 feet of the length of the present Boston & Maine tracks through Central square that would be directly benefited by depression.

"The other sections of the city have been silent on this matter so far.

"The depressionists will have to admit that not 500 people in Lynn will be benefitted by depressing the railroad tracks. Depression would mean the replacing of the tracks of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad at tremendous expense. The sewage system would have to be changed at great expense and there would be danger of suits against the city for failure of a siphon system to work."

Mr. Magrane cited a case where the city of Boston had recently been compelled to pay $10,000 for an overflow of its sewer. He said a change in the sewage system would have to be made over private land.

Mr. Magrane argued that it would take Lynn two years to change its sewage and water systems so that the railroad tracks could be depressed.

"This would cost between $200,000 and $300,000," he said. "Depression would mean a heavy burden of taxation on a city that is now taxed to the limit. It would mean that factories would be moved out of Lynn. The burden of this improvement should be upon the railroad which is the one to benefit by the change. The city has been crying poverty for years. There are some streets in Lynn that have not had a load of crushed stone in thirty-five years."

Henry C. Atwell, District Attorney of Essex County, spoke against the three bills now before the committee regarding the change in Lynn's railroad tracks.

SAUNDERS IN HAVERHILL JAIL

and Saunders, Ripley and the deputy caught the 9 o'clock trolley car to Nashua Junction. There they boarded the White Mountain express from Boston, to get off at Plymouth, N. H. There Saunders was lodged in Grafton County jail till brought to trial on the charge of committing daylight robbery on Mrs. Alice Head, bookkeeper for the W. D. Veazey Lumber Company at West Thornton, N. H.

John Howard, charged with being Saunder's accomplice in the robbery, is already in custody. He was shot in the chase.

Mrs. Saunders stayed downstairs in the police guardroom while Saunders was in court. She expected her husband would be brought down to her before he was taken away. When Captain Ryan told her that her husband had been hurried aboard the trolley the young wife burst into tears. When she was composed she went back to the baby at her lodgings, No. 1 Richardson Court.

Says He Saved Woman.

Before going to the courtroom Saunders said:

"When I come to trial Mrs. Alice Head, the bookkeeper at the lumber camp, can tell the court that what I said of saving her life is true. It may have some weight in making my case more favorable. Howard, the man with me, is trying to throw all the blame on me. It is known that Howard and I had a struggle in the office of the lumber company just as we went out. Mrs. Head knows that struggle was caused by my saving her life. When we started out Mrs. Head and a clerk started to follow. Howard started to shoot. I grabbed his arm and knocked his revolver to the floor. I say I saved Mrs. Head's life.

"I never had any intention of killing anyone. I wouldn't have killed anyone, even to resist arrest.

"I am going back to stand trial. I shall plead guilty. I shall tell the judge that I know I did wrong, but that I did it all for my wife and baby. I shall ask for leniency for their sakes. They are my only interest in life. But for them I would have killed myself rather than be caught.

"I do not blame my wife for my arrest. She simply appealed to me to come to her and I could not resist the appeal."

No Charge in Quincy.

It was reported from Haverhill that there were two charges of highway robbery in Quincy held against Saunders. This is not true. The Quincy police are not looking for Saunders. This report is thought to have started through the fact that Mrs. Saunders is a Quincy girl and because the couple had lived there. Saunders was employed in the Fore River Shipbuilding Company's plant at one time, as he related in his unusual letter to the AMERICAN.

Mr. and Mrs. Saunders and the baby have been lodging at No. 1 Richardson Court, Haverhill, for two weeks under the name of Vose. Saunders came to Haverhill from some place he did not disclose. Mrs. Saunders brought the baby there from South Boston. The baby was then a month old.

Saunders worked in hay fields in the Haverhill suburbs, calling himself Robert P. Vose. Mrs. Saunders secured work in a shoe shop as soon as her strength returned. But she only worked one day because the baby fell ill and required every minute of her time.

The detective who trailed Saunders to Haverhill did so on a tip from Walpole. The detective was told that Saunders was in Haverhill under the name of Robert P. Vose and was getting letters under that name.

The detective hurried to Haverhill, told Captain Ryan and secured a warrant for Saunders's arrest as a fugitive from New Hampshire justice.

Not Even Armed.

The rest was simple. Saunders was arrested on Merrimack street Haverhill, while he was walking along slowly, reading a letter addressed to Robert P. Vose. The police had been told that Saunders would "shoot on sight." The man was not even armed. When grasped by the arm and told he was wanted, he said "All right." He went along quietly to the station.

Mrs. Saunders was told at her lodgings. She burst into tears, but quieted herself and hurried to the station house, where she stayed in the afternoon as long as she dared to be away from the baby. She and her husband discussed the baby's illness and the best thing to do under the circumstances. Saunders wanted to be in Haverhill till the baby was better. Mrs. Saunders came again last night and told him the baby was still in a critical condition.

Since last night's visit, however, Mrs. Saunders was told by Dr. George M. Atwood that the baby was better. Dr. Atwood knew the baby's father merely as Robert P. Vose. He was tremendously surprised when he learned yesterday that the father is Robert A. Saunders. Cheered by the doctor's opinion, Mrs. Saunders hastened to the police station early to-day and told her husband. Then Saunders quickly decided to go to New Hampshire without trouble.

Saunders has told the police what he wrote in his letter to the AMERICAN, that he had lost his job, was penniless and held up and robbed Mrs. Alice Head, at West Thornton to obtain money to provide for his wife and newborn child.

"Perhaps this has never been done before, and then again, perhaps no man has ever tried to do such a thing with the same motives prompting him and urging him on," says Saunders, "I said motives; no, it is motive. Love."

ANOTHER ARMENIAN MASSACRE FEARED

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 22.—Massacres are threatened in Armenia. The Turkish government is seriously alarmed over the news sent by its officials indicating a coming slaughter of Armenians to prevent restitution of lands seized after the massacres of 1896, when 100,000 perished. The government admits the danger, but says that all available troops are needed in Albania and Arabia, and that it will be necessary for the Armenians to fight their own battles. Foreign representatives to-day notified their governments of the situation.

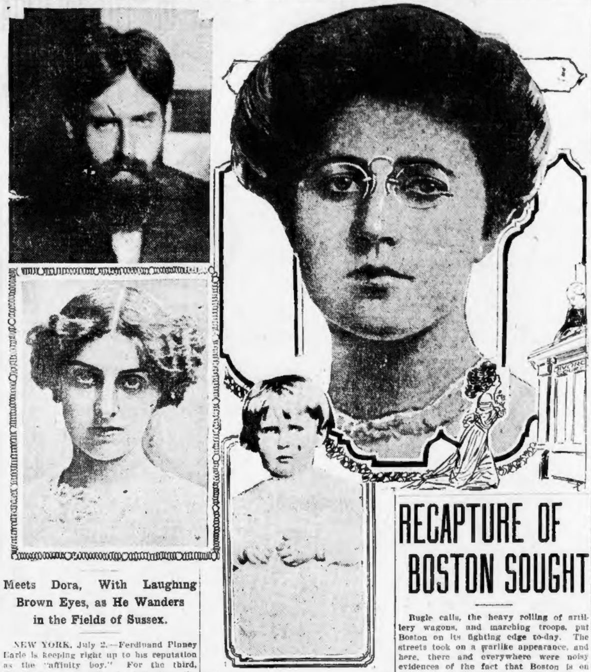
Ferdinand P. Earle Marries Third Soulmate Abroad



Artist Earle is shown at upper left hand corner. Large picture is that of Julia Kutner, second wife, who had marriage annulled. Other photographs are of the first Mrs. Earle and her child, with whom she returned to France when Earle announced that he had found an affinity.

Meets Dora, With Laughing Brown Eyes, as He Wanders in the Fields of Sussex.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Ferdinand Pinney Earle is keeping right up to his reputation as the "affinity boy." For the third, though not necessarily the last time, the world-famous collector of affinities has taken unto himself a helpmate. The news reached New York to-day, direct from Cologne, Germany, where Mr. Earle is with his bride. They are on their honeymoon, a tour of the world, and are due in New York in eighteen months—if it lasts that long.

The artist's latest one best bet in soulmates is a charming young woman, just twenty-one, with laughing brown eyes and a soft English complexion, the daughter of an architect at Wokingham, Berkshire, Eng.

Some of the New York friends of Mr. Earle don't yet know the maiden name of the young woman. In letters received from him during the past few days the artist passes over the bride's maiden name as entirely superfluous and beside the mark. He speaks of her simply as "Dora, the dearest, sweetest, loveliest of them all."

Earle and his mother, widow of General Ferdinand P. Earle, left these shores in March. Mrs. Earle No. 2, who was Miss Julia Kutner, had obtained a decree annulling her marriage just after Christmas and the artist discreetly waited until the decree had become final on the lapse of ninety days before adventuring the fresh fields and pastures new. There was good reason for this, as Mrs. Kutner-Earle got annulment just because Ferdinand had not waited long enough to satisfy the legal conscience after his first wife, a French woman, got her divorce.

Met While Roaming Afield.

Mr. Earle settled down in London, first making sure that the loose meshes of his affinity net had been made secure. But nothing came within reach that seemed worthy of capture. Present Mr. Earle wandered a little more afield. Windsor forest and its purlieus seemed to offer promising sport and one day as he wandered over the Hindhead, a glorious grassy knoll in Surrey, he met her.

There was no doubt about it. The beautiful Dora, with her laughing brown eyes and wealth of auburn hair, was surely intended for him, and he for her. Their souls met, as he has told the friends to whom he has intrusted the great secret, when they first glanced into each other's eyes. Prolonged courtships are not pleasing to Mr. Earle. The artist spirit breathes in him so restlessly that what is to be done must be done forthwith, and it was an added bliss to find that she felt just that way too. Introductions and explanations to Miss Dora's parents followed as quickly as might be, a special license was procured, and lo! there was a third Mrs. Ferdinand Pinney Earle.

Where to spend the honeymoon was a question speedily answered. Where but in a quaint old English inn on the Hindhead? A week or two there, then ho! for a world-round tour.

Mrs. Earle was delighted with the notion—in fact, she was delighted with anything that Earle proposed. She had heard the story of his lost loves, of the two previous vows to Hymen and mayhap something of that Gertrude Dunn affinity episode. And she understood perfectly just how harshly Cupid had treated him and how his motives had been misinterpreted by a cruel public and a heartless press.

Married in June.

The wedding took place toward the end of June, and about the first of July they left Hindhead to visit Holland.

From Amsterdam they journeyed to Haarlem, to see the famous Franz Hals paintings—a treat Mr. Earle had been promising himself for a long time. Mrs. Earle paints too, a little, and she thinks her husband's impressionistic work (he was a student of Whistler), is simply wonderful. They sketched bits of Holland as they made their way by a devious route to Antwerp, and there they took the steamer for up the Rhine.

Cologne and its cathedral is engaging their attention now, and Earle vows and declares he would not give up one little bit of Cologne for all of Holland. Besides, the beer is fine at Cologne, as he freely acknowledges, and Ferdinand knows good beer.

RECAPTURE OF BOSTON SOUGHT

Bugle calls, the heavy rolling of artillery wagons, and marching troops, put Boston on its fighting edge to-day. The streets took on a warlike appearance, and here, there and everywhere were noisy evidences of the fact that Boston is on the point of attack from the North Shore.

About all the militiamen in Greater Boston hiked out from their armories to-day in the direction of the Boston & Maine to entrain for the points at which the Red and Blue armies mobilize to-morrow. The same activity was noticeable to-day all over Massachusetts, for in the coming week's war game in upper Middlesex and lower Essex counties the entire mobile forces of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, numbering about 5,000 men, will be engaged.

The large part of the Greater Boston militia left for the front to-day. The First Corps Cadets assembled at its armory on Columbus avenue and hiked at 1 o'clock to the North Station. The Second corps—four companies—entrained at Salem at 8:30 a. m.

Light Guns to Front.

Battery A, First Battalion Field Artillery, left South Armory on Irvington street at 2 o'clock this afternoon, marching to the North Station. Battery B left the State Armory at Worcester to-day, and Battery C leaves the armory at Lawrence to-morrow morning at 6 o'clock. The batteries rendezvous at Boxford, where they will engage in drill and firing practice until July 27, when they will split up among the two armies of Reds and Blues for the manoeuvres on the North Shore.

The departure of Battery A from Boston to-day was the result of the discovery by the army officers that the stable keepers could not make their employes work on Sunday. The battery was not scheduled to go until to-morrow. The battery will detrain at Wright's Pond, remaining there until Sunday when the march will be resumed to Boxford.

The Fifth Infantry assembles in Medford square, in Medford, this afternoon at 3. The companies at the Charlestown Armory leave there at 2 o'clock and proceed to Medford.

Ninth Starts Tomorrow.

Companies C and E, Eighth Infantry, leave the Cambridge Armory at 3 o'clock for Suntaug Lake, Lynnfield, where the Red Army, under General Pew, mobilizes to-morrow forenoon. Company A leaves the armory at 8 to-morrow morning.

The Ninth Infantry leaves the East Armory on East Newton street to-morrow, except the two out-of-town companies which will meet the rest of the regiment at the North Station.

The First Squadron of Cavalry—Troops A, B and D of Boston and C of Cambridge—will be divided between the two armies. A and D mobilize with the Reds at Lynnfield, and B and C with the Blues at Billerica.

Companies K and M, Eighth Infantry, entrain at Somerville this afternoon for the front.

The departure of the soldier boys brought out all the incidentals of actual wartime. They will be exercised over the North Shore ground until July 30, under conditions which will be as nearly like real war as can be brought about.

The war game is the most important ever undertaken by any State troops independently of the regular army. The Red Army will be commanded by General William A. Pew, Jr., and the Blue by General Embury P. Clark, who by the way is retired from active service on July 26. General Clark, however, will remain in command of the Blues until the war game is completed.

The theory under which the war game is to be played is that Boston has been captured by the Reds, and that the Blues—or the United States army—had been scattered, one section towards New York and the other to Portland. The Reds are to be regarded as the "enemy."

SEEK $50,000 FROM FIRM OF BROKERS

The United States Column Company filed suit in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court for $50,000 damages against the dissolved brokerage firm of Gavet & Porter, which did business at No. 15 Kilby street up to a week ago. The plaintiff says the brokerage firm failed to carry out an agreement to underwrite $100,000 worth of the plaintiff company's preferred stock. The action is directed jointly against Louis F. Gavet of Boxford and Alexander Porter of Boston as members of the former firm of Gavet & Porter.

NINTH CHOLERA DEATH IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, July 22.—The ninth death from cholera in the port of New York was recorded to-day, when Demetrio Anagnoston, aged seventeen, died in the isolation hospital at Swinburne Island. He was a steerage passenger on the steamer Moltke.

LORDS PREPARE TO SURRENDER

LONDON, July 22.—The British constitutional crisis caused by the deadlock between the House of Lords and the House of Commons over the veto bill was put squarely up to King George to-day by Premier Asquith.

The King gave a long audience to Mr. Asquith in Buckingham palace, during which the possible creation by the King of 500 additional peers was thoroughly thrashed out. It was reported on apparently good authority that the King had reiterated to the Premier his previous assurances that he will create the additional peers if this becomes necessary to carry out the expressed popular will.

King George, it is said, is reluctant to take this course, but has determined that it is his duty to do so if the Upper House remains obdurate. However, there is believed to be little danger of this now.

Signs of surrender of the peers are accumulating, and the Tory papers to-day declare for abandonment of the House of Lords' programme. Former Lord Chancellor Halsbury is practically the only influential recalcitrant to-day, and it is believed that he will have but few followers in his announced intention to fight against the government's bill to the last. Lord Halsbury is eighty-six years old. His friends fear that the old gentleman's rage at the King's action may be the cause of apoplexy.

Asquith Writes Balfour.

The whole situation was effectually cleared when Mr. Balfour, leader of the opposition, received the following letter from Prime Minister Asquith:

> Dear Mr. Balfour: I think it is courteous and right, before any public decisions are announced, to let you know how we regard the political situation. When the Parliament bill in the form which it has now assumed returns to the House of Commons we shall be compelled to ask that house to disagree with the lords' amendments.
> In the circumstances, should the necessity arise, the government will advise the King to exercise his prerogative to secure the passing into law of the bill in substantially the same form in which it left the House of Commons and His Majesty has been pleased to signify that he will consider it his duty to accept and act on that advice.
> Yours sincerely,
> H. H. ASQUITH.

This letter and the decision of the King to support his minister clears away all obstacles to the passage of the Parliament bill popularly known in London as the veto bill. Its principal feature is that it removes the arbitrary and dominating veto of the House of Lords from all future legislation.

Great Power For Commons.

When this bill becomes law, as it must now in the immediate future, in view of the letter of King George to Mr. Asquith, all ministerial measures can only be rejected twice in the same Parliament by the House of Lords.

The third time a bill need not go to the Lords, but is taken direct to the sovereign for his royal signature.

With the Lords' complete veto power gone, the passage into law of the bills to repeal the act of union between England and Ireland (which followed the extinction of the Irish Parliament in 1800), and then a bill to re-establish the Irish Parliament, restoring to Ireland home rule, will be only a question of time, three years at the outside.

A bill to disestablish the Anglican Church in Wales, and other important reforms for Scotland, will speedily follow the settlement of the Irish question.

Things haven't been going along in the Spindle City for the past four or five years quite as people would like. There has been too much "curtailment" in the cotton business. What is the matter with the textile industry? A special article in the Sunday AMERICAN attempts to answer the question. Everybody in Lowell will want to see it.

CHIEF AFTER COUNTRY CLUB

Another move against the Brookline Country Club was made to-day because it is claimed that illegal sales of liquor take place on its premises. The complainant in this case is Police Chief Corey of Brookline. Previously an attempt was made by the Law Enforcement League, an organization which is much of a mystery as to membership.

Judge Perkins issued a summons against the club.

Chief Corey took out two complaints or applications for a warrant against the club. One charges it with keeping and maintaining a tenement used for the illegal distribution and dispensing of intoxicating liquors to members of the club and others to the common nuisance of all the people. The second complaint alleges that the club maintains a tenement for the illegal sale and keeping for sale of intoxicating liquors to members and others. The complaints are returnable on Tuesday next, when the club officials may answer them at the Brookline court house.

It is believed that Police Chief Corey will swear to the complaints today and that Attorneys John W. McAnarney and John P. Fegan, who represent the club, will accept service without delay.

The Law Enforcement League, through Attorney Felix W. McGettrick, recently asked for a warrant against the club, but Judge Perkins of the Brookline court, after giving the case long consideration, declined to grant the application.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT IN MARKETS

Among the latest delicacies in the Boston markets are French nectarines. They are grown in hothouses in France and shipped to this country packed in cotton batting. They sell here for $9 to $12 a dozen. They look and taste like a large reddish plum, very similar to those sold for 15 cents a dozen on the fruit stands.

Green corn is very scarce and high priced. Good corn sells for 40 cents a dozen, although there is some of an inferior quality on the market which sells for 25 and 30 cents a dozen.

New Englanders will have swordfish all next Winter if the large catches of the past few days continue. The market is unable to take care of half of the fish coming in and large quantities are being stored in freezers. The fish is frozen stiff and keeps indefinitely. There is enough in the freezers now to last until Christmas.

Blueberries continue to be high priced. At present, while the season is at its height, they are selling for 20 cents a box.

VIOLA ALLEN TO OPEN NEW BOSTON THEATRE

Viola Allen will open the new Plymouth Theatre, the Liebler & Co., playhouse now in construction on Eliot street, according to an announcement made by Theodore A. Liebler. The choice is fortunate. Miss Allen is a Bostonian, and has a large following in this city. The name of the production that will be the new playhouse's premier has not yet been announced, but it will probably be one of the new plays the Lieblers propose producing the coming season.

AMAZING CHARGE AGAINST WOMAN

which he died. Once, while I was visiting John, I fainted. Mrs. Wilkinson took advantage of my unconsciousness to give me some syrup in which she had put the germs of consumption. I contracted the disease. I had to shoot her. It was her life or mine."

Blaskovec is suffering from tuberculosis. The police assert that his mind has been weakened by his illness.

The arraignment took but two minutes. Judge Wentworth presided. The prisoner was brought into court by Inspector Dammery and Chief Kendall. He appeared wild-eyed and ill. He looked as if he had passed a sleepless night. Clerk Brine read the charge and Blaskovec promptly pleaded "not guilty."

His father, Frank G. Blaskovec, who was the only relative in court with him, asked that examination be waived. The boy was promptly bound over to the September sitting of the Middlesex County Grand Jury in Lowell and was held without bail. He was returned to his cell and later taken to the East Cambridge jail.

The weird mania which has seized upon the mind of the youth reminds the Somerville police of that sensational Russian case in which a physician of high standing was accused of administering germs of fatal disease to his victims.

This case was given considerable publicity. The police think that young Blaskovec may have read the accounts of the Russian proceedings and thereby seized upon that idea in relation to Mrs. Wilkinson.

At the same time, the Russian case is so recent, that the police are amazed that Blaskovec should have adopted this unusual idea so quickly. It comes as the first instance in American police records of an accused murderer setting up this means of defense.

CENTRE OF VIRTUE LOCATED IN OHIO

DEGRAFF, O., July 22.—Indiana may have the centre of population, but Ohio possesses the centre of virtue. It is none other than this village of Degraff, in the centre of a strictly "dry" region, which boasts of 1,200 inhabitants, and the fact that there has not been an arrest within its borders in the last two years. Owing to the unparalleled goodness of the inhabitants the jobs of the Mayor and the marshal are in jeopardy.

George Chamberlain, proprietor of a lunchroom at No. 62 Ellis street, was discovered by Sheriff Emery in the act of unpacking sixty-four half pints and eight pints of whiskey. He was arrested and taken to the police station, where Bail Commissioner R. B. Seidel released him on bail of $200 for his appearance in court later.

TEXAS WETS AND DRYS ARE BOTH CONFIDENT

DALLAS, Tex., July 22.—The Texas State-wide prohibition election takes place to-day. The campaign closed with more than a thousand meetings, large and small, held in the State. Both sides profess to be confident of winning. There are approximately 650,000 qualified voters. The anti-prohibitionists estimate the total vote at about 460,000 and that the antis will win by 75,000. The prohibitionists estimate the vote at 500,000, and claim the prohibition amendment will be adopted by 50,000 majority. Both sides will keep open State headquarters in Dallas to receive the election returns to-night.

SCHOONER IN CRASH AT SEA

With her bowsprit apparently broken off and her head gear appearing as if it had been carried away, a three masted schooner in tow of the New York tugboat Gypsum King was sighted, bound West, past the Pollock Rip lightship, Chatham, soon after the fog lifted at daybreak. The vessel was lumber loaded and gave evidence of having been in a collision.

The Gypsum King and the disabled craft soon disappeared in the haze as they went up past the Handkerchief lightship, apparently bound to Vineyard Haven for shelter and repairs, the schooner being very deep in the water as if leaking badly.

The Gypsum King was on a voyage from New York to Windsor, N. S., with two barges, which are at anchor off Pollock Rip shoals lightship, apparently not damaged.

Marjorie Hamilton, known throughout America as the famous "Calendar Girl," is now recognized as the greatest known expert in the art of fat reduction, and she practices only simple, natural methods in reducing double chin and excess fat.

She is acknowledged as the highest-priced exclusive photographic model for art calendars in America, demanding one hundred dollars per hour from noted "Calendar Houses" for her time. Realizing that an abundance of superfluous flesh would no longer keep her in mad demand by photographic artists, she set about to reduce her increasing weight by a marvelously simple method of her own.

No harmful drugs or terrible massaging; no sweating; no painful physical culture exercises; no starvation diet; nothing to take internally; no poison stuff to rub on body and none of the old, ridiculous, harmful drug methods are used in her splendid new treatment.

J. Cunningham, 495 Portland Ave., writes in and says he considers this the most scientific fat reducing treatment in the world.

The free book of this Queen of Beauty explains to men and women, how by her natural, harmless treatment, they may reduce ponderous weight at the rate of one pound or more daily. How any man or woman may banish double chin quickly and regain new health and vigor.

American readers will be astonished to learn for the first time of a really new, marvelous combination of methods of FAT REDUCTION, as referred to in this splendid book, and now offered free to American readers for a short time.

A letter from W. L. Schmitz, from Montevideo, Minn., states by this treatment he lost 17 pounds in fifteen days, and he is the happiest man in the world; that he is now losing 2 pounds daily.

You will be amazed to know how rapidly you may reduce your double chin and excess fat by following her instructions and using her new combination treatment. All fat men and women, of any age, who desire to make themselves more attractive, should secure this wonderful book free at once and improve their figure quickly by her methods.

Mrs. Jessie Ring says she lost 14 pounds the first week.

This book is written in a fascinating style. It explains how, by her treatment, this famous photographic model, who is the raging "Calendar Girl" of the present time, reduced her own weight THIRTY-SEVEN POUNDS in FIVE WEEKS by purely natural methods, and without resorting to drugs, starvation diet, or harmful external stuff to rub on the body, or harmful exercises. It is said her new treatment is similar to that used by famous French actresses and court ladies of Europe, who dare not grow fat.

Write her at once, and learn the anguish she felt when her girlish beauty started to develop to abnormal proportions. Read of the terrors she felt when the monster fat made her realize she must give up her profession and fade into oblivion.

Learn how she experimented, and with determination and grit conquered fat; learn of these things so you may improve your own form and destroy your fat so it will not be longer necessary for you to subject yourself to the awful dangers of excessive flesh.

Violent exercises, starvation diets and worthless drugs, also harmful external stuff to rub on her body, were all of no benefit. So, realizing that if she desired to longer continue as the star in her profession, and be longer sought after by art calendar houses of America and Europe, she must do something quick to prevent the enemy fat from destroying her beauty, she studied on an entirely original and different plan, and after repeated efforts and many failures, made what she considers a wonderful scientific discovery, by means of which she has perfected a treatment which actually reduces the weight in a remarkably short time, and adds to the strength and health of the individual with every pound taken off.

This woman's remarkable success has amazed her friends, who stand aghast in astonishment, marveling at her wondrous skill. Her method is so simple, yet it is looked upon with curiosity and admiration. By this system and her combination treatment any person should reduce their flesh in the privacy of their own homes without medical assistance in many instances at the rate of one pound or more daily.

Mrs. C. Bell writes in a grateful letter stating she is losing a pound a day.

Mrs. L. Palmer writes the new treatment is wonderful and the safest thing she ever used. She lost 9½ pounds the first few days, and states her abdomen is four inches smaller.

It is simply astonishing the number of men and women who write in, regarding the wonderful results of her new process for banishing fat.

Mrs. H., of California, writes in and says:

"The second week after using your treatment and new system I lost eight and one-half pounds. So delighted was I that I kept right on using it, until at the end of the fifth week I had lost thirty-two pounds and felt like a new woman. My health has improved, my headaches have entirely left me, and what delights me most is that while using your simple method I kept right on eating everything I craved. I consider your system the only perfect one known for a speedy and sure reduction of flesh."

Much interest is shown in this new remarkable method by letters from distinguished physicians, which proves that even doctors are obliged to give up drugs and acknowledge this woman's combination treatment superior to all others.

The distinguished physician, Dr. Walter Robinson, writes in and says:

"It is with much pleasure that I offer congratulations upon this splendid method of treatment for the reduction of superfluous flesh and double chin. Nothing, in my opinion, could be more effective. This is the only scientific method of treatment endorsed by the medical profession. I consider your method of treatment not only original, but remarkably clever, and the only truly scientific way to reduce superfluous flesh and double chin harmlessly and quickly."

Miss Eliza LaVelle writes in and says: "The treatment is most wonderful; so easy to use and so rapid. It was such relief not to be obliged to use medicine or dreadful exercises. I ate all I wanted, yet kept right on reducing."

Enthusiastic letters as the above should be indisputable evidence of the remarkable merits of this treatment. The delightful letters from satisfied users which are being received from fat men and women are regarded as strictly confidential, Miss Hamilton considering it a great breach of confidence to permit publication of the addresses of those kind enough to express their heartfelt gratitude to her.

The most astonishing part of this fat-reducing method is that it does not create wrinkles or leave the skin flabby, but, on the contrary, it has a tendency to tighten flesh; something not usually attempted by other methods.

All American readers who wish to give up harmful diet, starvation methods; who wish to abandon the harmful internal and external remedies and painful exercises, should write for a copy of her latest work, so that they may learn how it is possible with her combination treatment to at once begin the reduction of burdensome flesh by using her combination methods.

Simply cut out coupon below and mail it at once, with your address plainly written. Ask her to send everything she agrees to send, ENTIRELY FREE, and DON'T SEND ANY MONEY, because this book of particulars is entirely free, as this charming "Calendar Girl" is so grateful for her own reduction, brought about by her simple methods, that she is doing her utmost to benefit men and women in need of a perfect home treatment which will benefit those burdened with superfluous flesh, and thereby make life really worth while.

She offers $1,000 in cash if she fails to prove the superiority of her methods over all others, and $1,000 if any medicine or a single harmful thing can be found in any part of her combination treatment.

VAST RAKE-OFF IN SUGAR DEAL

NEW YORK, July 22.—Claus Augustus Spreckels, son of the late Claus Spreckels, the sugar king of his day, told to the members of the Congressional committee to-day a story of an "inside job" in the present sugar trust by which the trust was mulcted by its own officers for several million dollars.

Mr. Spreckels, who is the head of the Federal Sugar Refining Company, held back nothing, and his testimony was told in the plainest and most easily comprehensible manner. There were no complicated details of financial jugglery. There was only the flat and bald statement that Henry O. Havemeyer, Theodore Havemeyer and John E. Searles, secretary of the trust, had bought a 45 per cent. share of the Spreckels Philadelphia refinery as individuals and had then sold it to their company at a tremendous advance.

"To Stifle Competition."

"In 1891," said the witness, "my father entered into an agreement with the American Sugar Trust to stifle competition in the sugar business in the West. This agreement was brought about in this way. I was in the East, and on a train going from Philadelphia to New York, John E. Searles, representing the American Sugar Company, made himself known to me, and tried to get me to return to New York and meet H. O. Havemeyer. I could not arrange it. Searles asked me at the Bellevue Stratford in Philadelphia if my father would not sell a majority of the Philadelphia plant, saying that if he would the American would call off its competition in California.

"I wired my father and he wired me that he would sell 45 per cent. of the stock. Later a meeting was held at San Diego, Cal. Mr. Searles could not go to San Francisco, for he was in contempt of court in a suit and he was afraid of being put in jail. My father sold the trust 45 per cent. of the Philadelphia plant and the Western Sugar Refinery was formed, Mr. Havemeyer and my father being owners jointly. Competition ceased in the West.

Gets Million in Cash.

"The Philadelphia company was worth $6,000,000. For the 45 per cent. taken by the American we received a little over a million in cash, which was paid me in New York, and the rest of a total of $2,250,000 in notes. When I closed the transaction I was surprised with the information that the 45 per cent. of the Philadelphia company would not be bought by the American Sugar Refining Company, but personally by H. O. Havemeyer, Theodore Havemeyer and Mr. Searles. H. O. Havemeyer was to have a three-eighths share, Theodore the same and Mr. Searles a two-eighths share.

"After a few months the three men sold the 45 per cent. of the Philadelphia refinery to the American Sugar Refining Company and received $7,000,000 in preferred stock and $7,000,000 in common stock for what they had paid only $2,250,000 for."

"Force High Prices."

Mr. Spreckels told the committee that he did not last long with the Philadelphia company. He said that he was operating the plant on the policy of his father, which was that all the sugar that the plant could could turn out should be turned out, and the product sold at reasonable prices.

"I was told by the American people that my idea was wrong," he said, "and that the right idea was to reduce the output, and force high prices because of lack of product. I retired from the company.

DOVER

Everybody in the Cocheco city knows that the textile business has been languishing for three or four years, at least so far as the operatives and the merchants are concerned, and all would like an "inside" answer to the query: "What's the matter with the cotton business?" The Boston Sunday AMERICAN has asked this question of one of the most eminent of New England manufacturers. What he has to say about it will appear exclusively in the Sunday AMERICAN.

HENRY C. BEATTIE, VIRGINIA MAN HELD AS WIFE-SLAYER

MET A BRIDE THROUGH PHONE

John C. Coughlin of Chicago, formerly of Chelsea and Boston, is on his way back to Chicago to-day with his bride, formerly Miss Annie Foy of Lynn, to whom he was introduced over the telephone seven years ago. The telephone, which was the happy medium of acquaintance between the two, has been used extensively by them during the past year for long-distance talks from Chicago to Lynn. It finally was used to set the wedding date.

Mrs. Coughlin is the daughter of James Foy of Revere. Seven years ago she became an operator in the Lynn exchanges. In Lynn she made her home with Mrs. Z. A. King at No. 8 Lookout terrace.

Soon after she went to work there a relative called her up at the office and said: "Annie, I would like to introduce to you over the wire a friend of mine, Mr. John Coughlin."

This introduction was followed by a personal meeting. Mr. Coughlin, who was then employed in the Boston office of the American Mercantile Steel Company, fell in love with the comely telephone girl.

A year ago Mr. Coughlin was transferred to the Chicago headquarters of the company. Before he went West he secured a promise from Miss Foy to wed him after he had been in Chicago sufficient time to become well established in his position.

Letters were exchanged between the two young people. The long-distance phone was also called into use at times as a more satisfactory means of communication.

A few days ago Mr. Coughlin called up Miss Foy and asked her to set a date for the wedding. Then he hurried East. The wedding took place last night at the parsonage of St. Joseph's Church, Lynn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Timothy J. Hurley. Miss Foy was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel E. Foy, and Mr. Coughlin by Francis King. The bridal couple left after the ceremony for Chicago.

KING TO BE GUEST OF ANCIENTS IN LONDON

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company has voted to accept the invitation of the Honourable Artillery Company of London to attend the three hundred and seventy-fifth anniversary celebration of the latter organization in July, 1912. Boston will send, it is expected, about 100 members attired in special uniforms adapted for the occasion. The Boston delegation plans to leave this city about July 1 and will stay in London about five days as official guests of the Honourables. During the visit the Boston company will tender a banquet to their hosts and it is expected that King George will attend as chief guest.

BROCKTON, July 22.—Joseph Geary, the aviator, will exhibit his flying machine at the lawn party in his home town, Avon, to-night. A new 60 horsepower motor will be shortly installed in the monoplane, and great speed is expected by Mr. Geary and his mechanician, Alfred Gay.

JAIL HUSBAND IN AUTO MURDER

RICHMOND, July 22.—Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., charged with the murder of his young wife, Louise Wilford Owen Beattie, is under arrest here. She was shot while motoring with her husband Tuesday night. Beattie said the murderer was a white man with whom he had had a dispute as to the right of way. Detectives found no trace of any such man.

Paul D. Beattie, a second cousin of the accused husband, was also taken into custody. He confessed that he had bought a shotgun for H. C. Beattie, Jr., for $2.50 at a pawnshop last Saturday, while his cousin waited outside in his automobile. He also bought three shotgun shells for him at a hardware store. Paul Beattie said he had asked Henry why he wanted the shotgun, and said Henry had not answered him.

H. C. Beattie, Jr., is the son of a banker, and twenty-three years of age. Paul is twenty-one and is a street car conductor.

A report is in circulation that H. C. Beattie, Jr., hired his cousin for $1,000 to fire the fatal shot. Paul Beattie is said to have attempted to commit suicide when taken into custody. At any rate, he has had hemorrhages and despite medical treatment is in a critical condition and cannot be seen. He is almost a nervous wreck, but will be put on the stand at the continuation of the coroner's inquest.

Third Degree for Husband.

Beattie was given what the attorneys termed the "third degree" on the witness stand at the coroner's inquest. The trend of the examination indicated the theory that the shotgun had been hid along the roadside and made use of by the murderer and then thrown out at the railroad crossing to indicate that it had been jostled out of the automobile where Beattie said he placed it after the mysterious man had shot his wife.

When Beattie was asked why he did not get blood on his left coat sleeve when he held his wife in that arm as he made the drive to town, he replied that he did not know. His trousers were blood-soaked.

After the examination of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., Miss Beulah Binford, the "other woman in the case," went on the stand and testified that she was with the murdered woman's husband on Monday night, stating that he had often spent the night in her home, and that there was a child. She told in detail of Beattie's friendship with her during the last several years and since he had married.

Victim's Clothes Burned.

The fact developed to-day that the clothes which Mrs. Beattie wore the night she was murdered were burned by order of Magistrate Jacob. It was held to-day that these clothes would have shown whether the woman was shot while in the automobile or while in the road. The relatives of the murdered woman did not want the gruesome clothes in the woodshed where they had been placed, and that is why they were destroyed.

Miss Binford is a beautiful blonde, aged about nineteen years. Several of her coterie of admirers, it is said, have left the city since she has been brought into the case.

Lavish in spending money, and with a good father, who probably did not know of his meteoric career, Beattie seemed to have no restraint whatever, and despite the exhortations of his pretty wife, was often seen in the company of Miss Binford.

H. C. Beattie, Jr., smokes cigarettes incessantly, and has been considered wild. The night he was married, about a year ago, Miss Binford sat in the church heavily veiled and witnessed the ceremony.

WIDOW IS HUNTNIG LOST SON IN CHICAGO

Having dreamed that she found her long-lost son James in Chicago, Mrs. Mary J. Haggerty, a Dorchester widow, has written the Chicago postmaster, asking him to help her locate the young man.

Mrs. Haggerty lives at No. 101 Draper street. She has been a widow eleven years. Nine years ago her son left for the West. He returned at Christmas, 1903, went back West and had not been heard from for seven years. The son is now twenty-eight years old.

If there is a James Haggerty, son of Mrs. Mary J. Haggerty of Boston, in Chicago or elsewhere in the West now, he will relieve a mother's anxiety if he will write to her.

FRED WELCH NO MATCH FOR AD

By ED. W. SMITH.

If you were a matchmaker for one of the Pacific coast clubs and had the option on several opponents for Ad Wolgast, champion lightweight, would you pick out Fred Welch, former English champion, as the man most likely to fill your arena with dollars and give the public a good run for those dollars.

Already we hear murmurings from the Pacific coast that few fans out there regard Welch as having anything like an even chance with the slugging Wolgast even in a twenty-round encounter, which is comparatively short out there. They say that Wolgast will be such an overwhelming favorite in the betting that the bout will be practically ceded to the American before the first blow is struck.

Jones Once Managed Welch.

Naturally one cannot blame Tom Jones, Wolgast's manager, for picking out this one for his man. Doubtless if he gets as much money for boxing the Briton as he would for somebody else, he should rest quite content.

Did you know that Jones used to manage this English boxer? He did, in the days when he had Billy Papke and was of a mind to increase his holdings in good pugilistic flesh. Mayhap there is a little feeling of friendliness for Welch left in Jones.

But the fact remains that the public would rather see a man pitted against Wolgast who might be regarded as having more of a chance than can be conceded Welch at this time. Welch never has knocked out a good man in his life. He lacks the punch and without swatting ability a man is nix against the present champion.

There was much "bum noise" about a side wager of $10,000 between Ad Wolgast and Freddie Welch. Indeed, it was B. N. right from the start, for a side wager of any size hasn't been made to stand up for years and years now. There was the same kind of talk between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson when there was so much talk prior to the big fellows making their match, but nothing ever came of it.

No Big Bets Ever Made.

Nothing ever does come of such conversation, which usually is started either in a spirit of braggadocio or for the purpose of inducing some susceptible matchmaker to fall for the wiles of the fighters' managers.

And, by the way, our old friend Baron Long, of Los Angeles promoting fame, is now named as the American manager of Fred Welch. That may mean something in Los Angeles and is probably the real reason Welch got the match with Wolgast.

MAUDE MULLER FOREVER

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

MAUDE MULLER on a Summer day
(Another wheeze, but I'll let it stay)
Was raking the meadows sweet with sage
And reading a local sporting page.

"Phillies and Giants, Cubs and Cards,
Fighting it out in their various yards,
With the Pirates, too! It would turn your head—
Something's got to break, boys!" Maude Muller said.

The Judge came whizzing down the lane
In a brand-new Bleriot aeroplane,
The aeroplane swooped like a living thing
And settled beside a cooling spring.

"Just a tiny drink," the Judge implored,
"Ere I rest and give you 'All Aboard!'"
The fair maid came with a dipper new
And handed the Judge a dram or two.

"This water is muddled!" the Judge did fuss;
"This water," said Maude, "has nothing on us!
Phillies and Giants, Cubs and Cards,
Fighting it out in their various yards!"

These, of all sad words, bring most fatigue,
"Who'll win that race in the National League?"

Horse News and Stable Gossip

Judging by the way Millard Drinkwater is bringing Seguin, 2:25, the four-year-old daughter of Bingen and Castanea, 2:19¼, along, the half sister to Cochato, 2:11½, is likely to be seen at the races this season or be up to showing a mile that will make her in demand for the stakes another year. She has beaten 2:20, how much is a secret, but the black mare is sure to add to the fame of Castanea as a speed producer.

Had it not been for the stopping of pool selling at Dover the meeting at Granite State Park would have been the best ever held there. As it was, the racing was first class.

R. F. Forbes, proprietor of Neponset Farm, Dedham, Mass., has sent his grandly bred young stallion, Don Frazier, record 2:27½ at two years, by Cochato, 2:11½, to Trainer Carpenter at the Readville track. The colt is just out of the stud, but can step well and is one of the most attractive young trotters at the track.

The meeting advertised to take place at Nashua next week has been declared off for lack of entries.

J. M. Johnson brought a couple of members of the Todd family down from Johnson Farm to the Readville track the other morning to see how they would take to the mile track. Echo Todd, the four-year-old son of Todd, and Amiss, dam of Phalla, 2:04½, etc., that went lame in training, both as a two and three-year-old, worked a nice mile in 2:25½, with the last half in 1:08. This chap, who has been under the care of Dr. Jesse Humphreyville since he went wrong last season, is as smooth as a smelt and appears to be as sound as a rock. The other colt that Mr. Johnson paraded was the three-year-old Simon Todd, that is out of Alcinyetta, 2:26½, by Alcinyone, 2:20¼. Mr. Johnson drove him a mile in 2:28, with the last half in 1:12. He is one of the best looking of the whole Todd tribe and is gaited right to trot to a very low record. With all this he is a solid bay of fine size.

TENNIS DATES FOR 'PRELIMS' NOT FIXED

YORK, Me., July 22.—Dr. James Dwight, President of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, stated to-day that the agreement with the English association to play the preliminary matches for the Davis cup in this country was reached three days ago, and that the officers of the association were now considering the place and the dates for the contest. It is expected these will be selected within the next few days.

By the acquisition of George Brickley and Ralph Hunt of the High School team the Everetts are in line for the amateur championship of the State. To-day they tackle Pope-Cottle, champions of Chelsea, and great interest is manifested in the game.

FOUR CUBS WANT CINCINNATI JOB

By BILL BAILEY.

It's very likely that something of interest to the Chicago fans and to those of Cincinnati will happen when President Murphy of the Cubs and President Garry Herrmann of the Reds meet. This talk of one of the Cubs managing that Cincinnati crew is not all talk.

Joe Tinker may not manage the Reds. Johnny Evers may spend the remainder of his baseball days with the West Side crew. Jimmy Sheckard may stick to the West Side aggregation and Artie Hofman may never depart.

But there is a chance, and a good one, that one of the quartet will be secured by Herrmann.

Players Given Permission.

As a matter of fact, some of the Cubs are after the job and, more than that, they have the permission of the Chicago management. Before the team started East it is said that some of the men who had been mentioned in connection with the Cincinnati management went to the Cub officials and asked permission to attempt to land the managerial job.

They were told to go ahead.

From Cincinnati comes the statement that one man on the Cub team attempted to open negotiations with President Herrmann. He received no encouragement, for the reason that President Herrmann declared it would be a breach of faith to negotiate with the player before he had seriously discussed the proposition with President Murphy. For that reason the first meeting of the two will be watched anxiously by the fans.

Of course the first question the Chicago fans are likely to ask is whether any of the stars mentioned could be dispensed with.

Bresnahan Trade a Sample.

And the answer to that lies in the trade which St. Louis made for Bresnahan. President Robison came mighty near giving a whole ball club for Bresnahan. He gave Murray, star outfielder, and wrecked his own pitching staff by giving New York his best twirlers. But Robison declared he could not win even a respectable place in the league race with his pitching staff as long as he was without a smart manager, and that he would rather have the latter than the star twirlers, for the reason that a wise boss would recruit a twirling staff, but that smart heavers would never create a good manager.

Had the owner of the Cardinals lived another year he would have seen his argument borne out.

Chase For Job Is Hot.

And there is a theory that the Cubs will look at it the same way. Except that they will take the end that the New York management did in the St. Louis trade. That is, they will allow one of their stars to go if in return they secure players who they figure will more than make good the loss of the playing ability of the departing hero.

The race for the position of manager of the Reds is getting to be a hot one. About the first thing Herrmann did after returning to Cincinnati was to announce that he would have a playing manager. None other would do. That, of course, removed George Stallings, who was being pushed by some of the Cincinnati fans.

Evers, Sheckard, Tinker, Hofman, all Cubs, are said to be the leading candidates.

Just the same, there should be something of interest to the fans in the next meeting between Presidents Murphy and Herrmann.

AL KAUFMAN ACCEPTS M'INTOSH'S OFFER

NEW BEDFORD

Greater fortunes have been made in the textile business at New Bedford than were even dreamed of in the day of New Bedford's supremacy as the "Whaling City." And yet New Bedford, like all the other textile centres, feels that there is something wrong in the mill situation. What is it? Read the answer of a manufacturer in the Sunday AMERICAN.

WOLGAST DENIES PACKEY MATCH

LOS ANGELES, July 22.—"What about it?—nothing, absolutely nothing," said Tom Jones, manager for Ad Wolgast when asked at the St. Mark's Hotel in Venice, what he knew about the news dispatch from Chicago to the effect that Wolgast was matched to meet Packey on September 18 at Milwaukee, the weight to be 133 pounds at 3 o'clock.

"Every time Wolgast goes East the McFarland family tries to get a batch of Jones. "Packey rushes into the Chicago newspaper office with a wad of his own imagination written out on paper, and advertising at his expense; continued peddles the guff out with the result that we have to go to the trouble of denying it over and over again."

In support of his statement Jones pulled out a Western Union envelope and exhibited the following telegram:

"Cadillac, Mich., July 21.—Tom Jones, care Jeffries' Cafe, Los Angeles, Cal.—Pay no attention to the story in papers. Ship on the Wolgast-Moran films, will start showing them in Michigan next week. Let me know when you start East. Regards to all my friends. (Signed) "Ad Wolgast."

GOLF GOSSIP CLUB NOTES

The entry of Charles "Chick" Evans, Jr., of Edgewater, in the Essex County tournament Thursday, surprised everyone, for this youngster had barely landed from abroad, where he won the amateur championship of France at La Boulie, Versailles. He cannot say too much as regards his treatment abroad, for he was received splendidly at all the courses he visited, and had one continual round of good time.

In talking with Evans he remarked on the splendid performance of Masseys' in winning the French open with an aggregate of 284 on four rounds. He said this latter player's golf was little short of wonderful.

Evans defeated Anderson in the final for French amateur honors, and the match went 38 holes. At the 37th Anderson drove to within putting distance of the hole while Evans was in a trap. The western golfer played out, dead to the hole and when Anderson missed his short putt the hole was halved. The next hole Evans won and took the title.

Players in the Essex tournament have nothing but commendation for the alterations in the course and although the links are baked hard, giving a phenomenal run to the ball, the holes were placed so as to test players' ability on the greens pretty severely, hence the scoring although generally lower than last year, was not record breaking.

Hatherly's tournament Saturday is of the open handicap nature, and will give the Bay State players a chance to visit the North Scituate beach, get in two rounds of golf, and perhaps a dip in the briny. There will be prizes for the best net, second net, gross and other scores. Luncheon will be served the visiting players by the ladies of the club.

BIG ENTRY FOR NEXT REGATTA

BALTIMORE, July 22.—The Ariel Rowing Club and the Arundel Boat Club will have their best crews entered in the national regatta at Saratoga Friday and Saturday of next week. If the predictions of Secretary Fortmeyer of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen prove correct, the forthcoming regatta of the association will be the largest attended and most successful of any held in several years.

"It is impossible to tell anything about the number of crews entered," said Mr. Fortmeyer yesterday, "because the entries do not close until Saturday and we will have to wait until about Thursday for the western mail, as everything mailed up to Saturday at midnight will have to be considered.

HACK FIT AND READY FOR BOUT

NEW YORK, July 22.—Jack Curley, the well-known wrestling impresario, arrived yesterday from England on the new ocean Queen, Olympic. The most important announcement bade by Jack was that George Hackenschmidt is in the best of form and will leave England for here on the next trip of the Olympic, which sails from Southampton on August 9. Also he said that Hackenschmidt will immediately prepare for his match with Frank Gotch, the world's champion, which takes place in Chicago on Labor Day, at the American League Park.

When Hack left here he had already signed up for this struggle for the world's title, but Curley took a special trip abroad to make sure that the Russian Lion would not default the match.

GOTCH DOING A LOT OF WORK

HUMBOLDT, Iowa, July 22.—Champion Frank Gotch's training quarters at Riverside camp, near here, is already a busy place, and each day for the next six weeks will find increased activity on the part of the kingpin wrestler of the world.

Gotch is overlooking nothing in his fight to condition himself for his match with Hackenschmidt in Chicago on Labor Day and he has a hard line of work set before him.

The Terror of the Camorra
By EX-MAYOR GEORGE B. McCLELLAN
of New York City
Have you any clear idea what the Camorra is, or of what the trial, now going on, of thirty-seven alleged Camorrist murderers, in Viterbo, Italy, means to the civilized world?
Scattered newspaper articles, extending over a period of several months, necessarily fail to give any connected idea of this most celebrated case.
A concise account of the whole matter has been written for the Cosmopolitan by Ex-Mayor McClellan, who has been in Italy studying the case and attending the sessions of the court.
His article, written in a pleasant conversational style, deals with the origin of the Camorra, the murder of Cuocolo and his wife, the story of the informer, Abbatemaggio, and the personality of the court and prisoners.
The trial will probably continue several months. Get a copy of the Mayor's article and fix the matter clearly in your mind before any further startling disclosures are reported in the daily press.

RUSTLERS MUST HAVE HIGH-CLASS PITCHERS

By R. W. LARDNER.

According to the unofficial averages, Boston's "new" shortstop, Al Bridwell, is thirty-six points below Charles Herzog in batting. Herzy has been clouting .300 even and "Brid" has been stinging them for a mark of .264. This is quite a difference, but it doesn't signify that the Rustlers got any the worst of the exchange. Fans have allowed themselves to believe that Boston needed hitters, simply because the local club was falling a few runs short of the total piled up by opponents.

The fact of the matter is, that as a rule Boston scores enough runs to win with decent pitching. The trouble has been in the defence, not the attack. Herzy's long drives undoubtedly were valuable, but they were not as valuable as strong pitching would have been. When a team is counting five or six tallies per game, it can afford to let out a .300 hitter if an exchange will strengthen the defence. The trade with New York didn't bring a pitcher to Boston, but it did bring an infielder who will work in harmony with his mates. The least one can say of Bridwell, Sweeney and Ingerton or Steinfeldt is that they are willing. There won't be any friction among them now.

Bridwell never had any trouble with his fellow athletes. He is one with whom it is almost impossible not to get along. Mr. McGraw and he were not the best of friends, but that is nothing against "Brid".

When Giants Come Again.

When the Giants come here again, in September, Charley Herzog, if he is still with them, will play his head off against our Rustlers. He will try to show Boston how great he really is, and he'll probably pull off some stuff that will startle the natives. It is ever thus. Herzy will have a better chance to shine than will Bridwell, because New York, at present, has a stronger ball club than Boston.

And the fans will shake their heads and say: "It was a mistake to let him go!" It's one of the things a manager has to bear. He isn't in a position to point out that the "canned" athlete is trying harder than he tries under any other conditions, and that he looks better than he really is because he's with a better ball tem.

This trade won't serve as a moral lesson to ball players in general. On the contrary, it may encourage some athletes to follow in the footsteps of the late, lamented Charley. He wanted to go back to New York. He didn't think there was much chance of his getting there. He was fined for indifferent playing, and rebelled when he found that the fine was to stick. His refusal to abide by his manager's act and to respect Tenney's authority was insubordination.

What Was the Punishment?

And what was the punishment? Why, he got just what he wanted—his release. However, Manager Tenney didn't make the trade to please Herzy. He was trying to get rid of a disturbing element, for such he considered Herzog, and it was just an accident that the affair turned out to Charley's liking. But there is no love lost between Herzog and McGraw, and the ex-Rustler may not have such a picnic as he expects.

The Rustlers will set out to-night for the West and their first stop will be Chicago, where they open up on Monday. The Pirates will play an exhibition game in Erie, Pa., to-morrow and will be at home to Brooklyn the following afternoon. Harry Steinfeldt may join the Boston team when it reaches Cincinnati.

The playing of Gowdy at first base in to-day's game does not mean necessarily that he will be used there permanently, although he probably will be the regular if Manager Tenney likes his looks. Bridwell is placed second in the batting order because of his intelligence. Gowdy is a right-handed hitter and Bridwell a "lefty." The lineup as announced by Manager Tenney for this battle contains three who hit from the left side of the plate. This is just the right number, according to big league managers, although some of the best teams are getting along with two.

The local games will probably start at 3:15 on week-days from now on. The Saturday games will be at three o'clock. President Russell and President Taylor agreed to make starting time 3:30 early in the season, but they have about made up their minds that the public will be pleased if they advance the gong a quarter of an hour.

The Red Sox will be home on Tuesday and their game with Chicago will begin at 3:15, President Taylor having made up his mind to return to last year's plan at once.

The Rustler directorate will probably give up the 3:30 arrangement at the meeting of the board Monday afternoon.

STEINFELDT SERIOUSLY ILL AT HIS HOME

CINCINNATI, July 22.—Harry Steinfeldt, third baseman for the Boston National League team, is seriously ill at his home in Bellevue, Ky. The attending physician is authority for the statement that Steinfeldt is suffering from nervous prostration brought about by worry over his release by the Chicago team early in the season.

Last Monday Steinfeldt came home from Boston under the care of his wife and a nurse, and has since been under the observation of specialists in nervous diseases.

BIRMINGHAM SUSPENDED.

CLEVELAND, July 22.—Outfielder Joe Birmingham of the Cleveland American League team has received notice from President Ban Johnson of his indefinite suspension. Birmingham had an argument with Umpire Perrine yesterday. This is the fourth suspension of the year in the American League.

CLEVELAND, July 22.—Pat Donovan's Red Sox need to-day's game badly. It will give them an even break on their series in the West, and that is more than they hoped for at the close of their engagement in Detroit. It will also give them the Cleveland series, three games to one, and will put them ahead of the Naps in the season's duels to date.

Because victory is so important, Joe Wood will probably be asked to pitch. He worked Wednesday, but most of the other members of the staff have performed since, and it is the belief of Manager Patsy that Joseph can repeat his triumph.

Vean Gregg finished up Cy Young's game and may serve again to-day. Falkenberg, Blanding and Kaler are also in line. The Sox will leave to-night for the East.

It sure does pay to have three fly chasers who can cover more ground than any trio of outfielders in the game. Duffy Lewis, Tris Speaker and Harry Hooper, of the Boston Red Sox, play by far the widest outfield in the business.

Lewis is always within easy reach of the left field foul line. The same is true of Hooper and the rightfield line. Speaker is just midway between this pair. The way they cut down singles, doubles and triples is a caution.

They gave an exhibition of their ability along this line Friday at Somers Park. Between them they bagged fourteen drives propelled by the strong armed Naps. Yes, it is true that some of the drives were easy to gather in, but no less than six were hard chances. But the fleet footed Red Sox got to them in time to bag them and thereby saved Southpaw Ray Collins a lot of trouble. It wasn't that Collins pitched such grand ball that enabled the Boston boys to defeat the Naps 7 to 2. Rather it was the great outfielding of this trio and the timely hitting of Speaker, Lewis, Engle and Carrigan.

The Naps made almost as many hits as the Red Sox, but the locals did not show as much getup on the bases, as Patsy Donovan's boys. Gene Krupp had the Bostonese guessing up to the sixth, when he developed a streak of wildness, which, coupled with some timely hitting, netted them four runs and gave them the victoyr. With one down in the sixth, Speaker singled and Lewis doubled. Engle was purposely passed and then Wagner drew a walk. Carrigan followed with a healthy single. Catcher Fisher foolishly tried to nip Carrigan off second base and Wagner trotted home. Just to make victory certain the Red Sox scored two more in the ninth, boosting their total to seven.

Every indication that shows the trend of advertising preference points clearly toward
MoToR
THE NATIONAL MAGAZINE OF MOTORING
MoToR carries a larger volume of advertising and more individual advertisers than any other automobile trade paper.
In the June issue there were 75,474 agate lines, equalling 337 standard magazine pages, and representing 742 advertisers. This issue had a lead of 46% in volume over the next largest automobile publication.
June MoToR had more advertising than any other magazine published, general or trade (Printer's Ink figures). MoToR's average increase for the first six issues of 1911 over 1910 has been 20%.
MoToR's advertising success is the direct result of the quantity and quality of its circulation.
MoToR reaches not only the whole automobile trade, and all worth-while dealers, but also more motor car owners and prospective owners than any other automobile publication.
MoToR's audience of approximately 160,000 readers, affords the most concentrated automobile buying power than can be covered with any one medium for advertising. For that reason it is the most economical advertising you can buy, because every copy reaches a possible purchaser of your goods.
MoToR is the one publication in the automobile trade that can solicit advertising upon a basis of fact instead of theory. Its advertising space approaches the point of known value, following the modern tendency for reducing advertising from a matter of conjecture to a science. No matter what the proposition, if it appeals to the automobile trade, or buying public, MoToR should be the first advertising medium on the list.

RUSSELL INSISTS ON BIG PROFIT IN SALE

fers the Boston team to Baltimore. Ned Hanlon and Mayor Preston of that city may want a big league club there, but they will have to get it from some other town than Boston. Even if President Russell wanted to see his team moved to Baltimore the needed consent of the other National League owners would not be forthcoming, for there is not a scrap of evidence to show that the Maryland metropolis is as good a baseball town as Boston.

President Russell is a man of business and also a man of impulse. When he says that he doesn't know just what he

If President Russell of the Boston Nationals can sell at a profit of $100,000, he will part with his holdings. An offer that nets him less gain than that will not be considered. Already he has turned down propositions that would mean $43,000 earnings for a little over half a year of baseball ownership.

It looks as if he would continue at the head of the club, inasmuch as there is some $60,000 difference between what he has been offered and what he wants.

One story can be coppered without further ado. That is the one which trans- will do, he probably means it. Just at present, however, he says that he will remain a baseball magnate unless somebody comes along with a $250,000 offer for what it took $100,000 less to buy.

"On Monday the connection of Mr. Page and his brother with the club will cease," says Russell. "He has sold his stock to me under a contract which provides for its transfer at noon Monday, July 24. I expect to take it over then, and concurrently with the taking over of that stock, Mr. Page and his brother are to resign from the directorate. I expect to elect two Boston men as their successors.

"I need not reply to any statements or criticism, which, I am informed, Mr. Page has made of the Herzog trade. I had the approval of the majority of the directors before that trade was made.

"The trade made with New York of Herzog in exchange for Bridwell and Gowdy will, I hope, prove mutually and equally advantageous to both clubs, but I am sure that time will show we did not get the worst of it. Bridwell, while he has been playing professional ball a number of years, is still a young man. He has that rare quality of which Bill Sweeney is another example, of playing all the time the best he knows how, for the good of the team and without regard to individual glory.

Regards Trade an Even One.

"I regard the trade of Bridwell for Herzog, as in itself, an even one, and I think that what Gowdy adds to the strength of our club will be so much gained. I think that Bridwell at shortstop and Sweeney at second will prove the strongest combination that has been in the National League since Tinker and Evers were at their best with the Cubs.

"We can neither buy nor trade for the pitching stars. We have made every possible effort in this direction. I stand ready to pay any amount of money, not fabulous, for a single star right hand pitcher, but he is not to be had; therefore we have to develop pitchers for the Boston team as Bresnahan did for the St. Louis team. At the close of the season we will take back Billy Burke from Montreal. We also hope to repurchase Bradley Hogg from Haverhill, if he continues to make good there. We have in Rariden a coming Kling, as his work in the last few games he has caught has shown."

Vice President L. Cames Page of the Boston National League Club is strongly opposed to the deal whereby New York gets Herzog in exchange for Bridwell and Gowdy. Mr. Page says:

"It is a shame the way that this club is being frazzled out of the few good players that it possessed by the shrewd managers of the National league, and yesterday's deal, I believe, is about the worst that has ever been pulled off in baseball as far as Boston is concerned.

"Herzog is a grand ball player," one of the best in the land, and in return we get practically nothing. We get an untried youngster and a man who is slipping, as McGraw would not let Bridwell get away from him if he was going good.

"The deal was not made legally and has not been ratified by the board of directors of the Boston club. There was no meeting of the board called and Mr. Russell had no right to make the deal."

Standing of the clubs in ordinary games:

Starfish Giants	7	6	1	.851
Umperiners	10	5	4	.500
Wasps	7	3	4	.429
Wild Cats	10	3	7	.300

The Wild Cats, Shrimp Flynn's aggregation of butterfingers, simply walked away with yesterday's game.

The score was 14 to 5.

The Umperiners were badly crippled. Eaglebeak Spruder was not on the job. Ever since his reported engagement to Emily Morton came out he has been in hiding. His sister Vivian told us that he will never show his face around the neighborhood again. She says that he told her to say for him that the whole story is a fake. He admits that he bought Emily a cent's worth of peanuts and shelled them for her, but outside of that he hates her, so Vivian says.

We tried to get an interview from Emily Morton, but she was so busy calling down little kids that we hated to interrupt her.

Since the engagement story came out all is excitement around the neighborhood. All the youngsters are on the job trying their best to kid the principals. As Eaglebeak has decided to stick in the house, Emily receives the attention of the gang. When she gets through with the work she has started there will not be a little kid in the whole block, who cannot run as fast as she can, that can say he or she kidded Emily Morton and got away with it in any sort of a classy manner.

All any one has to do to get attended to is to stand on the corner and when Emily walks by yell "Hello, Mrs. Eaglebeak!" She will do the rest.

Now that the Umperiners and the Wild Cats have finished their series, we will have to look to the Starfish Giants and Wasps for some excitement. We hope that this engagement mystery is all cleared up by the time the next series starts so we can give our entire attention to baseball.

However, we are always on the job, no matter what happens, and will give all the news in Sunday's paper.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DOES NOT LOVE HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen years old and have a friend about the same age.

This young man seems to show a great deal of attention to me and, in fact, tells me I am the only girl he ever loved. I know that his love is sincere, but am sorry to say that mine is not the same.

I love him, as a friend, and, at times, I long to see him oftener than I do, but when I am out with others I feel I can enjoy myself much better than if I were in his company.

Kindly tell me how to act in his company.

IT is too bad that he thinks you are in love with him. In some way you must let him know that you are only his friend. You can do this without hurting his feelings. Always be absolutely frank and sincere, at the same time making him feel a certain limit that cannot be overstepped. He will not pass the bounds of friendship if your manner toward him is gentle, kind and reserved.

ACCEPT HER APOLOGY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

One of my girl friends called a friend of mine and myself insulting names five weeks ago. She said she would not apologize.

Several weeks later she was holding a birthday party, and asked us to attend. She apologized to us, but my friend refused to acknowledge it.

Kindly tell me whether I was right in accepting her apology. Was it right in my friend refusing?

The girl is willing to apologize to him any time.

M. J. M.

THE young girl evidently regretted what she said to you. It is only right to accept her apology if you feel that her friendship is sincere. I think it only fair to give her another chance. He does not know her as you do, and therefore cannot do her justice.

True friendship seeks the best qualities in a person, and, while realizing their faults, overlooks them.

Your friend will accept this apology when the young girl has shown herself deserving of his friendship.

GIVING HIM GIFTS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am seventeen and have been keeping company with a young man of nineteen for several months. Is it proper for me to remember him on his birthday? What should be the gift? He remembered me with gifts on my birthday and at Christmas.

ANXIOUS.

IT is better never to give a man a present, whether it be at Christmas or on a birthday. He may give you as many as he pleases, you have only to accept them and show your appreciation. Not until after you have become engaged to marry a man, or perhaps not until you are married to him, is it proper to bestow gifts upon him.

A SPELLING LESSON.

"Father," said Marjorie, "I can spell Isabel."

"All right," father replied, "let me hear you spell it."

Marjorie spelled "I-s-a-b-e-l-l."

"That's wrong," smiled father; "you put two l's in it like a bell."

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments

SIR IAN and Lady Hereward, while visiting their neighbors, Mrs. Forestier, learn accidentaly of the presence in England of Teresina Ricardo, a beautiful young girl, with whom Sir Ian was infatuated while in India, prior to his marriage.

"She has decided to pay you a surprise visit this very day," says Mrs. Forestier.

Sir Ian and his wife hasten home to receive Miss Ricardo, but Lady Hereward leaves him when half way through the woods to Friar's Moat, explaining that she has some souvenirs to distribute among several of her tenants.

Sir Ian meets Miss Ricardo, whom he has not seen for years. She notices that he seems distressed. She explains that she is visiting her cousin's wife a few miles away, and felt compelled to visit Sir Ian and his wife, who had been her companions in former years.

Mrs. Barnard, wife of Tom Barnard, farmkeeper for the Herewards, is attending to her household duties with little Poppet, six years old, playing at her knee, when Miss Craigie, Lady Hereward's maid, calls to make a visit at the Barnard lodge. Tom Barnard, who was a soldier under Colonel Hereward and idolizes his old chieftain, is away at the village. The Barnards live under the shadow of an old stone tower, which was built to afford the countryside a wonderful view of the hills in the distance.

Mrs. Barnard tells Miss Craigie the history of Ian Barr. The old uncle of Sir Ian Hereward married an Italian opera singer. They separated, and then, without learning whether his first wife was alive or not, old Sir Ian married an Irish peasant girl. Ian Barr was born to them, the boy taking the name of Barr when he learned that his father's first wife was alive. Ian Barr quarreled with old Sir Ian when he (Ian Barr) learned of his father's deception, and was cut off in the will, everything being left to Sir Ian Hereward, a nephew, when the old man died. Sir Ian tried to get Ian Barr to accept the fortune, but the latter refused and was subsequently persuaded to take the place of steward on the estate.

Miss Craigie goes, and shortly afterward Sir Ian appears and asks for Tom. His face is white, and he cries that his wife has been killed. When Tom comes home, they go to the tower, where the former had found the body of his wife. Her jewelry is missing and it looks like robbery and murder.

Miss Ricardo and her sister-in-law discuss the Herewards and the former's acquaintance with Sir Ian in India when the butler breaks in upon them with the news of Lady Hereward's death.

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

MAUD stared reproachfully. "You hardly seem to sympathize at all!" she cried. "I suppose you're numbed by the shock."

"I suppose I am," the younger woman answered.

"We shan't sleep to-night," wailed Mrs. Ricardo. "I dread the long hours. Oh, how my head aches again. I feel as if there were a horrible tramp hidden under every bed in this house. If only they had caught the man, it would be a little better. Have they no suspicions, Dodson?"

"Well, Madam, to tell the truth, Jennings brought in a very queer report from the village," the butler replied, half fearfully, half with a kind of gruesome joy in having something further of mystery and horror to report. "There's a vague rumor that young Mr. Ian Barr returned to-day, and was seen going into the woods, but no one saw him come out again. The tale is that it was her ladyship who lost Mr. Barr his place as steward, and everybody knows that he was the only person she seemed to have a dislike for. Mr. Barr was always a young gentleman with a high temper, madam, and they've been saying in the servants' hall to-night, what if, in a sudden fit of temper ——"

"No, no!" Mrs. Ricardo cut him short. "I like Mr. Barr. I won't believe it of him. And yet—ah, but it must have been a tramp!"

"Let us hope so, madam," the butler responded solemnly. He had no sympathy for tramps.

Free to Think

Maud said that she would die if left alone that night, and her maid would be worse than no one as a companion; Josephine was a coward, and had such blood curdling ideas.

Terry must come and lie in the bed by Maud's side—not to sleep, of course, because it would be impossible for either to sleep, but to talk—to talk of poor Milly Hereward, and of what to write to Ian in the morning, when they had heard more details, and could tell better what to say.

They did talk; or rather Maud talked and Terry answered, a night-light making gray twilight in the curtained room, because Maud could not bear dark. But soon after one, sleep began to punctuate straggling sentences [illegible] then long; and presently slow, regular breathing told Terry that she was left to watch alone.

At least she was free to think, to ask herself questions and to try and answer them. Lying by Maud's side, tensely alert in mind, she reviewed each minute of the afternoon, from that of her arrival at Friars' Moat to that when she had bidden Ian Hereward good by.

Only—it was difficult to think clearly. One thought woud rush in upon another before the first had time to travel to its logical conclusion.

She went back to the moment when the footman had opened the door and she had asked for Lady Hereward. "Her ladyship went out to lunch with Sir Ian," the servant had said. Then just as she had refused to wait, and was starting away, Ian had come.

At first glance she had found him little changed; but by and by, when a slight flush had died away from his face, the illusion of youth faded with it. She had thought he looked worn, and haggard, not as happy as so fortunate a man ought to be.

There was no real reason, she told herself, why the sight of her should have made him sad. As she had said to him, "It was all so long ago." If he had felt no remorse then, why should he suddenly feel it now

Recalled Speech

He had fallen so desperately in love with Milly that he had thrown all other considerations but that love under his feet and trampled on them. Yet—and yet—what anguish had been in his eyes and tone today! His groan when he had broken out with, "Oh God, Terry!" sounded in her ears still.

Never since had she ceased to hear it echoing, along in her own room, at dinner afterward with Maud, and—more despairing yet through the telling of the butler's story.

Could it be possible that Ian's marriage had not proved a success, after all he had sacrificed to make it? Miss Ricardo could scarcely believe that it had been a failure, for as a young girl she had worshipped Millicent Latham, and could easily imagine that a man could adore her. Once Terry had heard some one say, "Milly Latham is an acquired taste, but once the taste is acquired, it's bound to last."

She had recalled that speech when she heard of Sir Ian's engagement to his distant cousin; and she recalled it again now.

Milly had seemed to forget all about Terry in the midst of sunshine and marriage; but, in the peculiar circumstances (of which Terry believed her one-time friend to have remained in ignorance), it was better that she forget.

Things being as they were, their intimacy could not have gone on. But now Terry's heart yearned over the dead woman.

"Poor, poor Milly!" She wondered if she had ever thought of Ian's wife unkindly or unjustly? She trusted that she had not. To harbor harsh thoughts would indeed have been unjust, for nothing had been Milly's fault.

Ian no doubt had been silent about the past, and Terry herself had kept the secret well. A few hints she might have given in letters at the time, perhaps, before she had known Ian would be leaving India for England. She had mentioned meeting a "cousin of Milly's"; Milly had written back to know "what he was like," and Terry had described him rather enthusiastically, as she had seen him then.

That was all. Poor Milly! Ian had been swept off his feet at first sight of her; and Maud said now that they had been devoted to each other. Yet that "Oh, God, Terry!" What did it mean, that stifled cry of the heart?

Teresina Ricardo would have given a great deal if she had been able to stop her ears and shut out the echo of that cry; but it was inside her head, and could not be shut out.

Her imagination, whose vividness was a curse as well as a blessing in her life, clearly sketched a woman's figure walking under great trees in a wood. Then, another figure grew out of shadows, and followed. Whose figure?

Had Been in Woods

Terry had a horrible feeling, born of overwrought nerves that if she looked long enough at the picture she would see whose the shadowy figure was, and know the awful secret of the murder. But she dared not know. She did not want to know.

Justice would find out in time. She would not be in the secret if she could; and she thought with a strange pang of Miss Verney. That girl had been in the woods. She had said so. What had she seen? What did she know? Something had happened to blanch her cheeks, to redden her eyes, and give her the look of a hunted deer. What thing?

At all events Miss Verney's agitation and her confession—no, not that word in this connection!—her statement, rather, that she had been in the woods, made up a mysterious coincidence. If she had met her lover there—if it were true that he hated Lady Hereward—but Terry broke the thought almost fiercely in her brain. She was angry with herself for letting it steal in.

NOBLE MEN! THEY ARE ALWAYS READY TO DO THEIR DUTY! ROSAMOND WE WILL GUARD THE SHIP.
ALL HANDS ASHORE FOR RESCUE WORK. CLAUDE WILL REMAIN ON BOARD TO GUARD HIS ROSAMOND.
A HORRID RUSE! THE CUR DESMOND SENT THAT MESSAGE TO LURE THE CREW AWAY BUT HE WILL NEVER STEAL YOU ROSAMOND. THEY CANNOT CLIMB THIS LINER, THEY HAVE NO LADDERS.
CLAUDE YOU ARE MY HERO AND I LOVE ONLY YOU FORWARD PALS!
THEIR SPEARS CANNOT SINK THIS SHIP! THE VILLAIN DESMOND IS FOILED!
TZOORIS OOMZIST
LOTS OF SPEED BOYS! GIVE THEM A VOLLEY OF SPEARS. NOW TO GET FAIR ROSAMOND
HORRORS, A TRICK WE ARE LOST!
I'LL NEVER MARRY YOU DESMOND. I LOVE ONLY CLAUDE
I'LL JUMP WITH YOU TO SAFETY WHILE THE BIG COLLISION WILL SMASH YOUR LOVER. YOU ARE IN MY POWER ROSAMOND
I DEFY YOU VILLAIN
HERSHFIELD

Deceived by the fiendish ingenuity of Desperate Desmond, who sends out a fake wireless appeal for help, the gallant sailors of the mail steamer head their vessel for the shore. True to their noble traditions, they cannot pass unheeded an appeal for aid. Needless to say, this was the characteristic upon which the cunning villain based his plan. Even villainy can recognize virtue.

Every man of the crew volunteers to go to the aid of those in danger. Quickly they pile into the boats, and willing hands pull the oars with a swing. Never can it be said that the "Whopper's" men did not hasten when their help was needed. Not a soul is left aboard the ship but Claude and Rosamond, who cheer the sailors as they set out on what they believe is an errand of mercy.

As the sailors go out of view of the ship, what a terrible sight meets the eyes of the heroic Claude and his beloved Rosamond! Swimming rapidly towards the now undefended ship appears Desmond and his unscrupulous friends, the Wild Men. Claude realizes that he has been fooled by the fake wireless appeal, but he still hopes to save Rosamond from Desmond's clutches.

With wild cries the Wild Men hurl their steel-pointed spears against the liner. There seems to be little hope of success for them, since the sides of the ship tower far above the surface of the water, and their spears cannot pierce through the tough wood. Claude is again joyful, and deems Desmond to be baffled. But it is never safe to regard a live villain as finally defeated.

With unerring precision the Wild Men have hurled spears into the sides of the ship in such a manner that the shafts form a convenient ladder to the upper deck, where Rosamond and Claude are watching the scene with dismay. In a few moments the black demons and their ruthless leader will be aboard the ship, and Claude, the villain's rival, will be in their power.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, as he watches the time draw near for Claude's end. The heroic lover is bound to the bows of the mail steamer, which is about to bump into the cliffs ahead. Claude will soon be crushed against the rocks, and Rosamond must witness his fate. There seems no loophole of escape, but tomorrow's pictures will tell the story.

When Is a Woman Old?

By DOROTHY DIX.

THE Madrid papers have been having a very entertaining discussion of the subject of a man's age, and asking its readers to decide how long a man is entitled to be called young.

The answer that won the prize was:

"A man is young so long as he can make women jealous."

Another competitor thought that a man was old when he could no longer stoop down to tie a beautiful woman's shoe, while a woman contended that all men were young until they ceased to think of marriage.

"A man is old," wrote another competitor, "when a woman kisses him with cold lips."

Of course any discussion of a man's age is purely academic. It really doesn't matter at all. It's a bit of unimportant statistics between him and the family record, for he is literally as young as he feels, and may do as he pleases.

Of course all sensible people recognize that there is no other way of reckoning age that is so inadequate and so little to be relied upon as by the calendar. Age is a matter of spirit and temperament and body, not of years. There are people who are superannuated in the cradle, and others who are still mere boys and girls at eighty.

Yet to most of us, and especially to women, there comes some fine dividing line, on one side of which we are young, and on the other side of it we are old, and this line isn't a birthday mark.

When does a woman cross this Rubicon? I think:

A woman is no longer young when her husband begins to call her "Mother."

A woman is no longer young when she has to raise a car window for herself.

A woman is no longer young when men begin to confide their love affairs with other women to her.

A woman is no longer young when she begins to let out her corset stays and to lower the heels of her shoes.

A woman is no longer young when boys begin to bore her, and casual men callers pall upon her.

A woman is no longer young when she begins to put more stress upon a man's income than she does upon the way he makes love.

A woman is no longer young when she ceases to thrill and flutter at every approaching man, and to wonder if he is her fate.

A woman is no longer young when she begins to write discreet love letters.

A woman is no longer young when she comes to prefer sensible presents.

A woman is no longer young when she begins to sit with her back to the light, and to put red silk shades over the electric light bulbs.

A woman is no longer young when she begins ordering roast beef and potatoes for dinner instead of chocolate eclairs and pink ice cream.

A woman is no longer young when a man ties her shoe, when they are out walking, in a knot so that it stays tied.

A woman is no longer young when men begin to talk sense instead of sentiment to her.

A woman is no longer young when her husband or sweetheart introduces her to a handsomer man than he is.

A woman is no longer young when her husband or sweetheart does not look upon every other man who crosses her pathway with suspicion.

A woman is no longer young when a man asks for one kiss, instead of taking a hundred.

A woman is no longer young when her husband's kiss becomes a peck on the cheek that smacks of duty instead of burning with passion.

A woman is no longer young when her friends begin to talk of her beautiful character instead of her lovely face.

A woman is no longer young when people speak of what she was instead of what she is.

A woman is no longer young when those about her expect her to act wisely.

A woman is no longer young when the phrase "We girls" is continually on her lips.

A woman is no longer young, she is old, very, very old, when she ceases to lie about how many birthdays she has had, and joyously takes advantage of all the perquisites of age.

But perhaps no woman ever gets so old as that.

The Gun Runner

A Thrilling Story of Wireless and War

Synopsis of Preceding Instalments

GUSTAV LINGG, wireless operator on the Laminian, goes ashore while his ship is loading at her New York dock and loses his way in a dense fog which comes in from the harbor and envelopes the city. On a side street he meets a beautiful girl whom he has never seen before, but who calls him by name. "I want to talk to you," she says, "I must talk to you—alone."

Overcome by shyness, he stares boobishly at her for a moment and then turns and flees. He goes a long way and finally, just as a ferry whistle tells him that he is nearing the river, he enters a narrow street, only to find his way blocked by a cab, a cab with an open door.

In the cab sits the woman from whom he had fled. "I waited to warn you," she says, and makes him enter the cab.

"Of what?" he asks, as the cab starts.

"Not to sail on the Laminian."

He asks why not and she replies that it will not be safe. He apparently doubts her and she pleads with him. Finally she asks him to kiss her, and as he draws away from her, throws her arms around his neck. In the midst of his struggles, the cab stops, the door is open, and a man drags him into the street. A crowd gathers and a policeman appears, who begins clubbing his assailant. Then another man appears, who flings off the policeman and puts the dazed operator back into the cab, calling out to the driver:

"To the police station, straight!"

The man who had attacked the operator then tells the bewildered policeman that the man who has just driven off in the cab with Lingg is one of Wilkie's men and that the woman is also in the secret service.

The scene changes to the deck of the steamship Laminian. A big shouldered man in a raincoat wants to send a message, but the operator tells him the wireless apparatus is out of order and that he can't do any sending until he fixes it.

The captain calls to the operator to hurry up and get his apparatus in shape. Through the mist can be seen an approaching warship. The man in the raincoat paces the deck, now and then stopping to glance in at the wireless apparatus. He finally files a couple of messages signed Michael Duffy.

The next day the man hangs around the wireless cabin again after asking if there have been any replies to his message. The operator explains to him the workings of the wireless system and the stranger says he wants to send a message to New Orleans to inquire when a shipment of oil and mill shafting left that port.

The stranger inquires about the warship and the operator says she is bound for Culebra, off Porto Rico, having been ordered south on account of the Locombian trouble.

"Ever make this trip before?" asks the stranger.

"Never on this tub," is McKinnon's response.

After beating around the bush for a while, the stranger finally asks McKinnon if he would like to make a good, round sum by helping him out of a hole. He asks the operator to read over the first message he sent for him.

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

By ARTHUR STRINGER

"I SUPPOSE I've got to explain that," said the stranger, fondling one of his thick, short cigars in his thick, short fingers. "You'll notice that this message went to 60 Wall street.

"You may or may not know that that's the Information Bureau of the Consolidated Fruit Concern. And if you've knocked about the Banana Belt long enough you've found out that those people just about own their little yam eating republics down there."

McKinnon nodded as a sign that he understood.

"They've got a good many millions of money locked up in that export business o' theirs. And when you're doing business in a republic that's built on bullets you've got to watch where you're walking. It means that you've got to keep your ear to the ground; see that your governments are stable I mean; and you marionettes in their nice little red and gold uniforms running smooth and true.

"That's why they retain a big man like Varrel for their information bureau—just to know who's poking a finger into the potical pie down there, and to be ready for trouble when it blows up."

It was all obvious enough to the listening operator.

"Well, I'm here acting for Varrel and the Consolidated Fruit people. The Locombian charge d'affaires at Washington tipped our office off some five weeks ago about trouble ahead in Guariqui."

"Where's Gariqui?" quietly asked McKinnon.

"Guariqui's their capital—the capital of Locombia. Since we've heard that, of course, we've been co-operating with the department at Washington, keeping an eye on any Locombian likely to be interested in the Guariqui mix-up."

McKinnon confessed that he had known of detectives engaged in the sole pursuit of shadowing Latin-American exiles.

"And it's right here under this deck"—Duffy tapped the floor with his heel as he spoke—"it's right here on this ship o' yours that we've got Ganley—the one and only Ganley!"

"Who's Ganley?"

The stranger peered across the cabin at the unperturbed operator.

"Who's Ganley?" asked McKinnon.

The man in the steamer-chair let his astonishment explode in a ceilingward belch of smoke.

"Ganley! Why, Ganley's the biggest gun-runner doing business in the Caribbean!"

"Gun-runner?"

"Yes, the slickest revolution-maker that ever shipped carbines and smokeless into a Latin-American republic!"

"He's new to me," McKinnon protested.

"He's the man who's always smelling out a country that's looking for a liberator. And he gets a rake-off from the patriots and a rake-off from the Birmingham gun people, and another rake-off from the nitro-makers. Why, he's the man who's been engineering this Locombian uprising for the last seven months! But now we've got him good, and got him where we want him."

"Then what's he doing on a steamer like this? Couldn't he see he was going to be cornered?"

The disposition of the operator was not altogether an inflammable one.

"That's just the point, my friend. He couldn't get out of Charleston or Mobile or New Orleans. We had those ports watched. So he slipped quietly up to New York, engaged a passage on Saturday's Hamburg-American steamer for Colon, and then slipped over to the Laminian in a closed cab when he thought we weren't keeping tabs on him. But, pshaw! you know all this already, don't you?"

"Not all of it," replied McKinnon.

"But you saw that yellow-skinned man who was helped aboard? The sick looking fellow with the Spanish servant, who was almost carried up from that cab on the wharf?"

McKinnon confessed to some vague remembrance of the incident.

"That man is Ganley!" said the other. "And he's under this deck, down there in cabin fourteen, and you'll find that he's going to stay there until we slip into the roadstead at Puerto Locombia."

Must Keep Secrets

A meditative silence filled the little white-walled cabin.

"But what have I got to do with all this?" McKinnon at last demanded. His face seemed to carry the complaint that he had always found dissension on shipboard hard to endure; it was never easy to get away from disturbances in a world so small, or to put hate behind one in a life so circumscribed.

Yet he smiled a little, in spite of himself. A ship, he had somewhere heard, must be either a heaven or a hell. The next fortnight, he felt, would find little of the celestial about the Laminian.

125 Kinds of Eczema

Many people suffer from eczema when they think it is some other disease. Bulkley, the great authority, says that not less than 125 Latin names have been given to different forms of eczema. The one sure sign is itching, and the scratching that follows aggravates and spreads the trouble. When the skin itches, apply Cadum, the new remedy, and relief will follow almost instantly. The sores will begin healing at once, and complete recovery is often effected. Cadum excludes the air, dirt and germs, which must be kept out to promote the healing. In other skin diseases, such as redness, pimples, blotches, rash, roughness, scaly skin, chafings, acne, sores, ulcers, eruptions, hives, tetter, itch, herpes, psoriasis, ringworm, etc., Cadum is equally as effective as in eczema. Anty Drudge—"Yes, and your mother and grandmother wore hoop-skirts and poke bonnets and used tallow candles, but you don't. I tell you the Fels-Naptha way of washing in cool or lukewarm water is progress and any woman who doesn't take advantage of it is years behind the times."

Fels-Naptha soap relieves your washday burden because it was made for that very purpose. With other soap, you must rub and rub to get out the dirt. But Fels-Naptha thoroughly loosens the dirt, and thus saves the back-breaking drudgery of the washboard.

Think what the Fels-Naptha way means to you:

Cool or lukewarm water. The clothes soaked thirty minutes in suds, rubbed lightly, rinsed, and then ready for the line. Fels-Naptha has dissolved the dirt—as no other soap can.

So you see, Fels-Naptha not only takes its load, but it saves your hands, your time and your strength. And it will not injure the most delicate summery fabric. As good for every department of household cleaning as for the wash. Try it, and judge for yourself.

ACCIDENTS MAR GREAT AIR RACE

LONDON, July 22.—Two narrow escapes from death marred the start of the London to Edinburgh and return race around England and Scotland for the prize of $50,000 offered by the London Daily Mail to-day. In preparatory flights at the starting point on the Brooklands motor racing grounds, Pierre Prier, a French flier, and R. C. Kemp, one of the English contestants, were sent hurling to the ground by the treacherous wind currents. Both of their machines were wrecked and they were compelled to withdraw from the race. Kemp was cut and bruised, but Prier escaped unhurt. Kemp fell 200 feet.

The flight, which is to cover 1,010 miles, from London to Edinburgh and return, is for the London Daily Mail's prize of $50,000.

It was generally conceded that the fastest machine entered in the contest was the Nieuport monoplane of C. T. Weymann, the American contestant. This is the same machine with which he recently won the international aviation cup.

The course comprises fourteen sections, varying from 20 to 182 miles in length. To-day's flight was but a tuning up test, ending at Hendon, twenty miles away in the northwest of London, where the men will rest over Sunday.

Lieutenant Conneau (Andre Beaumont) rose promptly at 4 p. m. and landed at Hendon twenty minutes later.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; FINANCIAL NEWS

RECORD PRICES SAG AT CLOSE

STATE STREET, July 22.—Closing—Though the market closed at recessions from the new high prices recorded during the first hour's trading the list was steady, with most of the selling coming from those who were taking profits on stock bought earlier in the week. This was especially noticeable in the arbitrage trading, as Europe displayed apprehension over the Moroccan situation.

Smelting issues were the feature of strength on the announcement made that the Federal investigation had failed to disclose any cause for action against the company.

A good deal of interest was attached to the expected ratification of reciprocity by the Senate, but traders were disappointed with the course of the Hill stock, which should be the issue to benefit mostly by reciprocity.

There was a generally firm tone to Boston coppers, which was reflected from the better feeling towards these shares in New York. Traders seemed to think that a settlement of the long-expected copper consolidation was nearer than ever because of the immunity of American Smelters.

Everyone Is Urged to Enter The American's

$10,000 Proverb Contest

Back Numbers of Pictures and Proverb Books in Stock at Contest Dept.

Don't get the idea that you are at a disadvantage because you did not start solving the first puzzle picture on the day it was published.

Anyone living in New England, irrespective of age, may enter the Proverb Contest at any time, even up to the day the 75th picture appears.

That is the beauty of this competition! Anyone who, for any reason, is late in entering has just exactly the same chance of winning any one of the rich prizes offered as the contestant who may have entered on the day the first picture appeared.

The back numbers of the puzzles that have already been published may be had at the "Contest Department," at the regular rates of the AMERICAN for the days on which the puzzles originally appeared.

Sunday back numbers are 5c (plus return postage); daily back numbers are 1c (plus return postage). You may call for them or order them by mail. The Contest Department is at 275 Devonshire Street.

Every contestant should be equipped with a copy of the official and only official AMERICAN'S Proverb Book.

This volume contains over 3,000 proverbs, including the correct answers to each puzzle picture which will be used in the contest.

A copy of the PROVERB BOOK will be mailed to anyone who sends a money order for 25c to the "Contest Department, 275 Devonshire Street." Those who care to, may call for the same at the Contest Headquarters at the same address. Be sure to get the AMERICAN'S PROVERB BOOK.

To those of you—AMERICAN readers who have not yet started to solve the fascinating daily proverb puzzles, we can only say: Take one good, comprehensive look at the list of prizes which will go to the cleverest picture solvers, and see if it isn't really worth your while to get a set of the back numbers and GO IN AND WIN!

YOU ARE A GOOD BOY. YOU NEED TO BE POLISHED

What Proverb Does This Picture Represent?

Proverb Contest Editor, No. 34

Boston American, No. 275 Devonshire Street:
My solution of Proverb Puzzle No. 34 is:
....

My Name is..
Address..
Town..............................State.....................

Hold all answers until you have the entire set. No answers will be considered if sent in before the publication of the last picture.

Conditions of the Contest.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN PROVERB CONTEST is a contest of skill and judgment. Prizes to the amount of $10,000 will be given absolutely free by the Boston American to the winners. Every one living in New England, irrespective of age, is eligible to enter this contest.

Each set of answers must contain only one answer to each picture, but each person is entitled to send in three complete sets of answers.

The answers to the puzzle pictures may be sent in writing in longhand either with pen or pencil; they may be written on the typewriter or may be printed in any manner to suit the fancy of the contestant.

Participation in any other contest now being run or which may be run by the American will not debar any one from entering the contest.

Each contestant or any or all members of the family will be allowed to submit one, two or three sets of answers, but each set must contain only one answer to each picture. Each set will be considered separately, but no contestant can win more than one prize. All employes of the American and their families are absolutely barred from participating in this contest.

In case there are no complete lists of correct answers, prizes will be awarded to the persons submitting the nearest correct solutions. In case of a tie, award will be made on the basis of neatness and exact accuracy, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied contestants will receive similar prizes.

Do not send your answers now. Keep them from day to day and at the end of the contest arrange them in numerical order and then send them all in at one time.

Under no circumstances should contestants begin to send in their answers now, as any answers sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered.

Time will not be a factor in awarding the prizes. The first answers sent in after the contest closes will stand no better chance of winning a prize than the last answers submitted.

All answers must be delivered at the BOSTON AMERICAN CONTEST HEADQUARTERS, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass., either by mail or in person, within the specified time limit. It is contemplated to give contestants ten days to two weeks after the close of the contest to prepare their answers, so that they can be sent in altogether at one time.

The American will not be responsible for the receipt of any answers unless sent by registered mail and addressed to "PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR, 275 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass."

In case contestants desire further information they should address their questions to PROVERB CONTEST EDITOR, Boston American, 275 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

There will be seventy-five puzzle pictures in the series used in the contest. The solutions of these pictures may be sent in on the coupons printed in the Daily and Sunday American, or may be written on separate slips of paper. The use of the coupon is desirable, but not necessary.

The Editor of the PROVERB CONTEST reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that he may deem necessary for properly conducting the contest, and his decision on any question which may arise will be absolutely final.

Notes for Investors

Advices received in State street from reliable sources are to the effect that the general crop situation really is more satisfactory for this season than at any similar period in the last five years. This being the case the bears are compelled to fall back upon the political situation for comfort. They do not like it a bit, or at least this is what they say. The chief characteristic of a bear is that he does not like anything.

In the West and South, especially the latter, they are preparing to do a record-breaking business, all the conditions being ripe for it. The Southerners never have been so enthusiastic in all their history. They are preparing to pick a cotton crop that has had no parallel. Every Southern railroad will have more than it can do next year, and there will be a howl for cars that never has been known before.

One of the most important reasons for the strength of the market is that manufacturing concerns all over the country are beginning to make inquiries for time money. Although time funds can be had now at 3½ per cent. for long periods, the outlook is for 5 per cent. money within a month. Advance in the rate is hailed with joy by the bankers, who understand its meaning, for it indicates clearly that business is reviving in earnest at last, and that business men are ready to push out in all directions.

Reports of Erie being purchased first by one road and then by another are delicate matter, for, in the nature of things, a sale of some kind is really likely to be announced almost any time. Canadian Northern is the company that ought to buy Erie. It needs it and has the money to pay for it.

Announcement is made by an official of Standard Oil that the company will be split into 35 corporations in accordance with the United States Supreme Court decision. Stockholders will be given their pro rata share in stocks of the different constituent concerns. The accounting work will require considerable time.

At one time it was thought that the company might have to be divided up into about 125 separate concerns.

The federal Grand Jury having given the American Smelting & Refining Company a clean bill of health, the question arises, which large corporation will be the next one to be investigated. There are only a few left that have not been under some sort of inquest. But it must also be remembered that in order to maintain a criminal prosecution the government must be able to prove criminal intent. That is the rock on which the government's fleet of wholesale prosecutions is going to be wrecked. The trust managers are just as anxious to obey the law as the politicians are to catch them disobeying it, and it will be almost impossible to prove in any particular instance there was a criminal intent.

American Smelting has issued its annual report, which had been held back waiting announcement of some kind from the Grand Jury. The report showed that net earnings for the year ended April 30 were $70,124 greater than for the previous year. Miscellaneous expenditures were made, however, so far in excess of the previous year as to leave the net $80,141 less than for the previous year. By reason of an increase in interest and commissions and a larger sum written off for depreciation the balance of net income before deducting dividends was $380,162 less than the previous year, or at the rate of 6.84 per cent. on the stock against 7.09 per cent. in 1910.

The fact that Canadian Pacific and Union Pacific both made new high records for the year led to much discussion as to the possibility of Union Pacific overtaking Canadian Pacific.

Reasons for expecting Canadian Pacific to remain in the lead are that it operates in a country where law and order prevail to the highest degree, and where the people do not demand the prosecution of man for success in business, whereas Union Pacific has a very large investment in Southern Pacific, which has millions in Mexico, where law and order are uncertain quantities. The uncertainty of government in Mexico is holding back Southern Pacific and Southern Pacific is holding back Union Pacific. Union and Southern Pacific, however, are considered gilt-edged investment issues by the best people in the street.

State Street got a good deal of entertainment out of the astonishment expressed by New York politicians when they discovered that the American Ice Company controlled the Knickerbocker. As frequently suggested in this column, the politicians ought to buy a manual of stocks and bonds and discoveries would be made there that would save millions of dollars of public money.

On Tuesday next Steel's quarterly statement of earnings will be made public. The street looks for a good increase, the popular estimate being $28,000,000, or an increase of about 16 per cent. over the last previous quarter.

The American Smelting & Refining Co. will spend $75,000 in enlarging the smelter at East Helena, Mont. It has been reported several times that the plant would be abandoned but the proposed improvements indicate that the rumors were baseless.

GLIDDEN TOUR DATE IS NOT SET

By J. C. KERRISON.

The definite date for the holding of the Glidden tour has not been determined, but in all probability it will be held the latter part of August or early in September.

The statement was printed in the New York papers yesterday that the Glidden tour would be held on September 7, and in answer to a telegram asking if such was authentic, Chairman Butler of the Contest Board sent the following telegram:

> New York, July 21, 1911.
> Boston AMERICAN:
> Eleven entries received for tour to date. If thirty entries received by August 1st Glidden will be run and exact date announced. Article New York papers to-day unauthorized as to definite date. S. M. BUTLER.

It would seem as though the tour will be held this year, and if it is held it will be over the route already laid out.

Ralph Mulford, driver of the Lozier car, who is now in New York, is authority for the statement that he will not drive in the twenty-four-hour race at Brighton Beach, owing to the fact that the Lozier Company has announced its intention of competing only on regular automobile speedways or guarded road courses. Furthermore, Mulford has won two of the big Brighton Beach twenty-four-hour events and finished second in two others and believes he can afford to let one or two twenty-four-hour races go by. There was only one twenty-four-hour race ever held at Brighton in which he did not take part and he still holds the twenty-four-hour world record for stock cars. As regards the statement that Mulford and Harroun would meet in a 500-mile race at Brighton Beach during the twenty-four-hour contest, this is mere talk.

Two more splendid records went to the credit of the Stearns in Seattle, Wash., this week, when A. C. Stevens of that city driving a Stearns Toy tonneau runabout, won decisively in the $3,000-$5,000 class. Later in the afternoon the same car and driver scored another win, when in the feature event of the day, the free-for-all, they defeated a splendid field of cars.

Harry Grant, driver of the two-time victorious Alco, is now in New York city preparing for the Elgin road races of August 25 and 26. It is announced that the Alco Company is to go into racing more than ever before and will have no less than three cars entered for the Elgin.

The drivers of these cars will be Harry Grant, Frank Lee and Harry Hartman. Lee is the man who has accompanied Grant on his victorious drives of the past and is a thoroughly capable operator. Hartman is recognized as being a driver of nerve and ability and possessing considerable generalship.

Dear Little Andrew Carnegie—He Does Not Like Watered Stock

But It Is All Right for the Public to Pay to Dear Little Andrew Interest on Three Hundred Millions of Dollars—for the Very Property That Carnegie Offered to Sell for One Hundred Millions

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

Very many times we have praised Andrew Carnegie. Every time that he flatters his useful little vanity by giving away some of the money that he got in various ways we applaud loudly.

When any man who has cunningly taken money from the public gives back part of it we make it a point to applaud.

It is like having the chicken thief who cleaned out your roost bring you back an egg occasionally.

Better the occasional egg than nothing.

Better the occasional library, hospital, university, or home for broken-down, half-foolish American citizens than nothing—since the people have not the intelligence or ability to protect their national chicken roost of public monopolies and necessities.

Carnegie is especially lovable, because he is so guileless and innocent, and he is such a wonderful proof and example of the marvellous fashion in which Providence works to perform wonders.

Consider the intensely glorious fact that Carnegie gives only library BUILDINGS; he gives no books. How wonderful that Providence should arrange it so that Carnegie, excellent judge of bricks, mortar and steel work, and no judge at all of books, should put all the money into buildings. All of us love Carnegie, but between applauding his gifts and the gifts of other rich gentlemen, truths must be told, and we feel bound to tell Carnegie that he sounds hollow when he talks about watered stock and about the government fixing "prices liberal and fair to the actual capital invested and fair to the consumer."

If Mr. Carnegie's idea were made to work backward, the government, first of all, would take from Carnegie two-thirds of what he owns.

Carnegie offered his whole plant at one time for one hundred million dollars. Leeds and Frick had an option on the Carnegie business at that price, and they put up a million cash to bind the option. They could not get together the hundred millions to buy out Carnegie, so the deal fell through, and Carnegie took the million cash thus forfeited with a few sanctimonious words about his desire to keep the young men from being too optimistic in future.

That is why Frick hates Carnegie so frankly and persistently—at least, that is what Leeds told the present writer.

If Carnegie was willing to sell his business for a hundred millions, you may be sure that the price was a very good one, a very fair one TO MR. CARNEGIE, for the capital invested.

But Carnegie sold to the trust later for THREE HUNDRED MILLIONS. He got three times what he himself had said his property was worth. And when he talks of watered stock he should not forget the watered bonds in his own pocket. The people, consumers and workingmen of this country, that buy or manufacture iron must pay forever to the Carnegie fortune interest on two hundred millions of watered BONDS.

We do not blame Carnegie for taking three hundred millions, since he was able to get that amount. Many American citizens, perhaps, would take three hundred millions if they could, and even if the price DID seem a little high for the goods sold.

But Mr. Carnegie should continue in his fine Scotch specialty of making libraries more numerous than jails, and leave the lamentations on watered stock to those that never got two hundred millions of good solid watered bonds in one lump.

The Wooden Nutmeg Is Outdone

The wooden nutmeg, old as it is, won a certain fame for Connecticut. The ingenious Yankees of long ago, however, still have their emulators. Out West there have been numerous complaints of violations of the Pure Food law, some of which are worthy of record.

The most barefaced is an emulsion which causes butter to absorb its weight in water. At the end of ten minutes the operator has two pounds of butter where he had one before, and the buyer never knows the difference.

A Tennessee man offers a pure apple cider vinegar at four cents a gallon made with water and one apple. He also makes apple butter with one apple to the gallon of butter.

A Rochester (N. Y.) genius treats sawdust with molasses to aid in adulterating spices. Only experts can detect the fraud.

What would happen to us if the Pure Food laws did not exist is enough to make us shudder.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

CARE OF THE AGED

Editor AMERICAN:

In reference to your worthy editorials on aged, hopeless, dependent men and women, of some time ago, I'd like to make a simple suggestion, which, if read and studied by your sensible class of readers, especially the kind of readers I will refer to, may easily answer some questions.

"Where does this man or woman belong?" or "What of those weather-beaten, aged, helpless labor veterans, who are lost and forgotten among the turmoil and hustle of a great nation?"

There are thousands of childless homes right here in this city, and the owners of such childless homes can answer the above-mentioned questions, and I sincerely hope many of them will, as I will give them an outline of how they can—and why they ought to.

Every childless home is the sheltering place of at least one dog or one cat—and either one or both of the animals mentioned are well fed, washed and nursed if ill. Every dog, no matter how small he may be, eats and feeds on as large a portion of food as an old man or woman each day. Besides that, a dog must be attended to and taken out of doors daily, even if one can't spare the time for doing so.

Therefore, if it costs only as much to keep and shelter an old, homeless, helpless man or woman as it does to keep a dog, who, in the name of humanity, can afford to shelter and feed one, two or three dogs and refuse to give a hungry and homeless man or woman a home, when one considers that by doing so one only fulfills a human duty—the duty of "aiding and respecting the aged?"

It is nothing unusual for a childless couple to adopt an orphan as their own. Their neighbors honor and respect them for it—indeed, they deserve all honor and respect for doing so. But there are others who "don't wish to raise some other woman's children." Those are the readers my simple suggestion should appeal to. They should give an old man or woman the home, shelter and companionship their dog now enjoys, and by doing so they can themselves enjoy the praises and thanks of their adopted "new grandpa or grandma," who will try hard to please their benefactors.

God, who sees all, will record such a good deed in His book, and some day, when those people who adopt a "grandpa" or a "grandma" will pass from this world unto the other, He will welcome them and say: "You have fed the hungry and you have sheltered the homeless, now come to Me, for you are My children."

Bringing the Grand Trunk to Boston

The 100,000 persons who signed the AMERICAN'S petition to the Grand Trunk Railway, asking that road to extend its system to Boston, will be glad to learn that work along those lines is progressing, and that it appears to be only a matter of time until Boston's wish will be gratified.

The petition has been received by President Hays of the Grand Trunk Railroad, and he and his assistant, Cy Warman, have something of interest to say to the people of Boston in return for their cordial greeting and hospitable welcome in to-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

But the important thing is that the death-like grip of the railroad monopoly in New England is to be broken. And it is to be broken because the people demand it.

During the last ten years the efforts of one corporation to get entire control of the railroad situation throughout New England have been more and more strenuous, until to-day the monopoly is practically complete.

But the American people will not tolerate monopoly in railroads or anything else. The will of the people has been expressed on this matter time and time again, and the courts within the past year have backed up the people.

Business men of Boston are to-day doing what they can to develop this harbor so that the commerce that should be handled in this magnificent port may be attracted here. In line with this work are the efforts that have been put forth by the people through the AMERICAN to induce the Grand Trunk Railroad to come into Boston, and thus open up direct communication with the vast region of wealth that stretches through the great Northwest to the Pacific.

Every live business man in Boston wants to bring more business here. Every live business man wants to improve this city. The proudest boast of men who lived in Rome when that ancient city flourished was that they were Roman citizens. The time is coming when the proudest boast of Bostonians will be that they are Boston citizens.

The extension of the Grand Trunk Railroad to Boston will help to make this city what it should be and what it is destined to be—one of the greatest commercial cities in America.

In the meantime boost Boston. Boost the Grand Trunk. Boost any project that has the benefit of this city in view.

(The letter of President Hays of the Grand Trunk, with additional details of the progress of the AMERICAN'S campaign to bring the Grand Trunk to Boston, will be printed in Sunday's AMERICAN.)

Little Bobbie

He Writes About Making a Julep

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

MA and me found out last nite all about the rite way to make a mint julep. Pa brought a frend hoam that is a frend of Judge Mulligan of Kentucky.

Wife, sed Pa, I want you to meet Myron Mint, a member of one (1) of the best old Kentucky famblys.

I am pleased to meet you, Mister Mint, sed Ma, how is Missus Mint and all the littel Mints?

Mister Myron Mint looked kind of funny and red in the face, the way Pa looks sumtimes when Ma finds out he hasnt been at the lodge.

I am not married, Madam, he sed to Ma. If I were a married man I wud not be here, I wud be in the bussum of my fambly.

That is true, Ma sed, I had not thought of that. Of course it is different up North, Ma sed. Lots of the married men up here stays out lait nites & lets the bussum of thare fambly look like the Swiss Fambly Robinson, only moar lonesome.

That is neether heer nor thare, sed Pa, I brought Mister Mint all the way hoam jest so he cud meet you & littel Bobbie & teech us how to make a reglar mint Julep. It is a vary cooling drink, sed Pa, & a drink that will knit up the raveled sleeve of care like quills upon the fretful porky-pine.

You doant say so, sed Ma, looking at Pa kind of hard, you must have tried a few of them on the way up town. Any time you git to quoting Shakespeer, Ma sed, I figger that sumbody in a white vest & a white apron has been beeming at you acrost a strip of sum kind of hardwood, preferably mahogany, Ma sed.

That, also, is neether here nor thare, sed Pa. I want my frend Mister Myron Mint to tell you the rite way to make a mint julep.

Well, sed Mr. Mint, first you have to meet Judge Mulligan. The Judge is a old college chum of mine, sed Mr. Mint, & he spends a lot of time pottering around among his mint beds. He raises some of the finest mint that was evver raised, Pa sed. Please doant interrupt me, sed Mr. Mint. I am about to tell your esti-mabel wife & yure little son the proper way to make a drink.

That's rite, wife, sed Pa. Jest wait till you hear my frend deescribe the way to make a mint Julep. He is a regular Southerner, Pa sed, & a regular Southerner certingly knows how to describe the way to maik a drink.

Be that as it may, sed Mr. Mint, I will now give you the direck-shuns for making a regular mint julep. Fill a glass half full of crushed ice, pour in pure water to within an inch of the top, stir in two tablespoonfuls of sugar.

That will do, sed Ma. Looking at the faces of you & my husband I think I know the rest of the in-gree-dients.

During his recent tour of Ireland, Mr. Galvin, the Special Commissioner of the Boston Sunday AMERICAN, visited and closely studied two of the greatest schools in the "Emerald Isle." Expert educators regard them as among the most progressive establishments of their kind in Europe. The centennial of one is to be celebrated during the coming Autumn. In to-morrow's Sunday AMERICAN Mr. Galvin tells an interesting story of those remarkable institutions. Incidentally the article will relate a touching story of the fidelity and obedience of a poet-monk whose name is a household word on two hemispheres.
